Why Choose North Fork?

The truly outstanding quality of their work is in the exquisite details and craftsmanship of the project...when we purchased our new home in 2020, we knew that based on the quality of their work in 2005, this was the company for us."

Partnering to help create opportunities

Last year, Bank of America committed $1.25 billion over five years to advance racial equality and economic opportunity. To date, we've directly funded or invested one-third of this amount on top of long-standing efforts to make an impact in our communities and address society's greatest challenges.

Here are some of the ways we're working to make a difference:

- Investing $300 million in 100 minority-owned and minority-led equity funds, including Zeal Capital Partners, Reign Ventures and True Beauty Ventures. This will help diverse entrepreneurs and small business owners create more jobs, financial stability and growth.
- Investing $36 million in 21 Minority Depository Institutions (MDIs) and Community Development Financial Institution (CDFI) banks that support minority-owned businesses. This is in addition to approximately $100 million in deposits to MDIs and our existing CDFI portfolio of more than $2 billion, which helps build pathways to economic vitality in local markets.
- Providing funding and support through innovative programs and partnerships with community colleges, universities and nonprofits that offer training and credentialing programs connecting more people to high-wage, in-demand careers.

We're doing this work in collaboration with community partners, business leaders, experts and academics across the public and private sectors to ensure that our investments are directed where they're needed most. Together, we can help drive sustainable progress on Long Island.

What would you like the power to do?*

he Holiday Season is not only about giving to other's but is the best time of year to finally invest in you. Give yourself the gift that will have you looking and feeling your best and schedule your complimentary consultation with Stephen T. Greenberg, M.D., F.A.C.S. at his Southampton, Manhattan, Woodbury, Smithtown or Boca Raton, Florida locations. Put yourself at the top of your list this Holiday with a new breast augmentation, breast lift or breast reduction which many times is combined with liposuction, a tummy tuck or facial procedures such as facelifts and eyelid lifts to achieve the look you have been dreaming of.

With Dr. Greenberg's Rapid Recovery System, breast, body and facial procedures will have you back to your daily routine in 24-48 hours. Body contouring is the solution to reshape those undesirable areas and produce the results you are struggling to achieve at the gym. There are several new and amazing technologies that deliver advanced outcomes including Renuvion's Plasma technology which uses cold helium and radio frequency energy to tighten, and lift the skin on the face and body. Dr. Greenberg's Plasma Face Lift provides greater skin retraction for a more sculpted and defined neck and jawline while his Plasma Lipo produces more dramatic results, achieving a firmer and contoured waistline, chest, arms and thighs.

From Manhattan to Montauk Award Winning Plastic Surgeon STEPHEN T. GREENBERG, M.D., F.A.C.S. Has You Covered From Head to Toe

Whether you choose a fuller breast or a more natural shape, the newest generation of silicone gel 'gummy bear' implants provides patients with a variety of options for a more customized result. Another breakthrough in technology that enables patients to see what they will look like after having breast augmentation surgery, is Vectra® 3D Imaging. Vectra® 3D Imaging photographs a patient's body before their breast procedure and creates an exact 3D replica of themself on screen. This allows patients to actually see the expected result in advance of the surgical procedure. The photorealistic results can be viewed from all angles so that the implant size and shape can be adjusted to meet the specific goals of each patient. This provides complete control over the size, shape and position along with the expected outcome Greenberg is in high demand for television appearances to discuss the latest trends in the cosmetic world. He has recently been featured on Fox 5 WNYW Good Day New York and WABC News as well as in Newsday, The NY Post, Hamptons Magazine, In Touch and Star Magazine. At the apex of his craft, Dr. Greenberg is something of a legend. He is currently writing his second book as a follow up to A Little Nip, A Little Tuck. His weekly radio show Nip Tuck Today with Dr. Stephen T. Greenberg has fans of listeners every Saturday at 7 pm and every Sunday at 10 am on 710 am radio. Listen live through Dr. Greenberg's Instagram @drstephentgreenberg or at 710WOR.iHeart.com. visualized on their own body.

Dr. Greenberg's proprietary 24-Hour Rapid Recovery Breast Augmentation System has patients back to daily activities the very next day. "Patients need and want to resume normal activities immediately following surgery. Many people simply do not have time for downtime, this reality has given me the inspiration to offer a true rapid recovery option to my patients." states Dr. Greenberg. Minimal swelling and bruising coupled with a notably decreased recovery time have resulted in proven patient satisfaction. Dr. Greenberg recognizes the importance of addressing each person's unique requirements, goals and objectives, and implements an overall plan (inclusive of diet and exercise), to help achieve both a beautiful look and realistic result. Dr. reduce the appearance of old and new scars as well as stretch marks along with a custom curated skincare line Cosmetic Surgeon in a Jar™ with a devout following that benefits from powerful antioxidants and peptides to smooth skin, enhance elasticity and provide a Botox® like lift to the face and eye areas. He has coined his newest and wildly popular procedure combination the Modern Mommy Makeover, which is the perfect combination of breast augmentation with or without a breast lift, abdominoplasty with or without liposuction and labiaplasty with or without laser vaginal rejuvenation to fully restore a woman's body after the fluctuations associated with pregnancy and childbirth.

If you are looking for a nonsurgical solution this season, a combination of the latest injectables and highly advanced laser options will rejuvenate your face and body and give you a youthful appearance. Now is the optimal time to take advantage of advanced chemical peels which chemically exfoliate damaged skin cells resulting in even skin tone, smooth texture and fabulous, glowing, healthy skin. Treating sun damage is easy with Dr. Greenberg's advanced IPL Photo Facial skin rejuvenation treatment that reverses the signs of aging. Intense Pulsed Light (IPL) penetrates the layers of the skin and stimulates the growth of new collagen, while destroying excess pigment, redness, spider veins, fine lines and enlarged pores. IPL Photorejuvenation can be used on the face, hands, chest or arms, and promotes smoother, more youthful looking skin. Ultherapy® firms and lifts the eye and brow areas, lower face, neck and chest while his newest addition Morpheus8 tightens and rejuvenates skin on the face and body by remodeling collagen and stimulating brand new beautiful skin cells. Combine these treatments with Dr. Greenberg's mastery of cosmetic injectables such as Botox and Juvederm for a completely refreshed and more youthful look. Remember, the correct treatment regimen can help create the ideal you. Dr. Greenberg provides an exceptional experience in a beautiful, safe, caring and supportive environment. Attention Landlords and Tenants

Easier Application Process to Access $2.7 Billion in Rent Assistance Money Available to Eligible New Yorkers

Suffolk County has designated Family Service League, Nassau Suffolk Law Services, and OLA of Eastern Long Island to help Suffolk residents gain access to rental and utilities assistance through New York State's Emergency Rental Assistance Program (ERAP)

Important notes:

- Landlords and tenants can apply for assistance
- NEW No longer requires proof of ownership from landlord/owner
- NEW Verification is only required for the head of household
- Tenants may receive up to 12 months of utility arrears/assistance as well
- There are no immigration status requirements
- Landlords can self-attest to rental status (a lease is not required)
- Tenants can self-attest their income if paid in cash
- The relief is available to low- and moderate-income households

To learn if you qualify for ERAP or how to apply please contact:

Family Service League provides over 60 support and service-based programs to thousands of children and adults living in Suffolk County. Contact the office closest to your home or visit www.fsl-li.org

Brooklyn man sentenced to 33 years in 2019 death of NYPD Detective Brian Simonsen

BY BILL PARRY

The Brooklyn man who started the chain of events at a Richmond Hill cellphone store in 2019 that led to the friendly fire killing of NYPD Detective Brian Simonsen of Calverton was sentenced to 33 years in prison on November 17.

Christopher Ransom, 30, formerly of St. John's Place, pleaded guilty to charges of aggravated manslaughter in October before Queens Supreme Court Justice Kenneth Holder, who handed down the sentence. Ransom also pleaded guilty to another cellphone store robbery that occurred days before the shooting.

According to court records, Ransom and an accomplice, Jagger Freeman, used a fake gun to hold up the T-Mobile store on 120th Street. Ransom entered the business brandishing what appeared to be a black pistol and ordered two employees inside to surrender both cash and merchandise from the back of the store.

Ransom was still inside the location when police officers from the 102nd Precinct responded to the scene. Ransom proceeded to point the weapon, which appeared real, at the police officers, who opened fire in response.

An NYPD investigation found that seven of the officers fired 42 shots from both sides of the store. Simonsen, a 19-year veteran of the NYPD, who spent his entire career at the 102nd Precinct, was struck in the chest and died while he was transported in an unmarked car to Jamaica Hospital Medical Center.

A second officer, Sergeant Matthew Gorman was seriously injured with a bullet wound to his left leg and Ransom was struck eight times in the crossfire.

Simonsen had been representing his precinct's rank-and-file during a union meeting on the day he was killed. Mayor Bill de Blasio later said the detective could have "called it a day" and gone home, but he rushed to the T-Mobile store when the call came in.

Simonsen was 42 years old.

"My hope is that the family of Detective Brian Simonsen may finally have some closure with the sentencing of this defendant," Queens District Attorney Melinda Katz said. "His lawless, selfish behavior set the terrible events of that day in motion. He committed one of several robberies and terrified the employees of that cellphone store before drawing the fire of police. The heartbreaking result was the loss of Detective Simonsen and the injury of Sergeant Matthew Gorman."

The Legal Aid Society served as counsel for Ransom.

"With this plea agreement, Christopher Ransom takes full responsibility for his actions. The resolution of the case, however, should not detract from the immense physical and emotional pain that he continues to endure as a result of the injuries sustained in the NYPD's friendly fire shootout," The Legal Aid Society said in a statement. "The police fired 42 shots in 11 seconds that night, shooting Mr. Ransom eight times. He will carry physical scars and emotional trauma from this event for the rest of his life. Despite this, Mr. Ransom is committed towards seeking rehabilitation and redemption. We hope that the NYPD also takes this opportunity to reexamine their own procedures and training so that a tragedy like this never happens again."

Detective Simonsen was survived by his wife, Leanne, who was in the courtroom and delivered an impact statement directed toward Ransom before the sentencing.

"Brian was my perfect man and your reckless actions took him away," she said. "It is a Christian thing to forgive you. At this time, I can't forgive you."

Detective Paul Giacomo, Simonsen's longtime partner, said, "Brian was a world-class detective. We miss him dearly at the 102nd Precinct. I want to thank the prosecution for doing an outstanding job and getting the family justice."

5 Killed in Riverhead House Fire

BY TIMOTHY BOLGER

Five people were killed when a historic threestory, multi-family home in Riverhead caught fire late night on November 17, authorities said.

Riverhead Town Police officers and firefighters from multiple fire departments responded to the blaze 46 East 2nd Street at 10:38 p.m., but when the flames were extinguished, five people were found dead on the third floor, Suffolk County police said. Five other residents escaped unharmed.

As firefighters attempted to enter to the 7,000-square-foot home, the third floor collapsed onto the floor below it, according to the Riverhead Fire Department. A Victorian built in 1907, the house was part of the town's historic district.

The victims were identified as Zonia Dinora Rivera Mendoza, her son and daughter, Carlos Cífrelo Penate Rivera and Andrea Isamar Gonzalez Rivera, and two nephews, Carlos Alberto Ramos Aguirre and Douglas Edgardo Rivera Aguirre.

The Suffolk County Police Arson Squad and Homicide Squad are investigating the cause of the fire, which a preliminary probe has determined to be non-criminal in nature.

Riverhead Woman Accused of Killing Girlfriend

BY TIMOTHY BOLGER

A woman was arrested for stabbing her 20-year-old girlfriend to death at their home in Riverhead on November 18, Suffolk County police said.

Riverhead Town Police officers responded to a report of a disturbance 1142A East Main Street, but upon arrival, there was nobody home, and there were signs of a struggle at 11:58 p.m., police said.

Officers found the victim, Marta Esmerelda Ramirez-Carbajal, a short time later at Peconic Bay Medical Center in Riverhead where she was pronounced dead, police said.

Her girlfriend, 21-year-old Karen Abigail Delacruz-Reyes, who was also at the hospital, was charged with first-degree manslaughter.

Delacruz-Reyes was arraigned at Riverhead Justice Court.

Gosman's Market Owners Admit $250K Fish Fraud

BY TIMOTHY BOLGER

Two owners of the storied Gosman's fish market in Montauk have admitted to their roles in a scheme to catch and sell more than 74,000 pounds worth of over-harvested fish worth a quarter million dollars over a two-year span.

Bryan Gosman, Asa Gosman, pleaded guilty at Central Islip federal court to one felony count each of criminal conspiracy, and Bob Gosman Co. Inc., the federally licensed fish dealer also located in Montauk that they partially own, pleaded guilty to two counts of misdemeanor Lacey Act Fish Trafficking.

Their codefendant, 61-year-old fishing captain Christopher Winkler, is going to trial after pleading not guilty to charges of conspiracy to commit mail and wire fraud, obstruction, as well as unlawfully frustrating the National Ocean and Atmospheric Administration's (NOAA) efforts to regulate federal fisheries. A trial date has yet to be scheduled.

Federal prosecutors with the U.S. Attorney for the Eastern District of New York have said Winkler, the captain of the boat New Age, went on about 70 fishing trips in which he caught more fluke or black sea bass than allowed by federal quotas between May 2014 and July 2016. He then allegedly sold the fish to a now-defunct company and an unindicted co-conspirator, who investigators did not name, in the New Fulton Fish Market in the Bronx.

The Gosmans had an ownership interest in the defunct company and after it went under, Winkler sold a smaller quantity of his allegedly illegal catch directly to Bob Gosman Co. Inc., of which Asa and Bryan are managers, prosecutors said.

Fishing captains are required by federal law to accurately detail their catch on forms known as a Fishing Vessel Trip Report and wholesalers are required to specify what they purchase on a form known as a dealer report, both of which are submitted to NOAA, which uses the data to manage fisheries. But the captain and the fish dealers falsified their reports to cover up the fact that fish were taken in excess of quotas, authorities said.

The Gosman cousins also withheld documents and records sought by a federal grand jury in an effort to cover up the fraud, according to investigators. The indictments were part of Operation One-Way Chandelier, an ongoing multi-year investigation into fisheries fraud on Long Island being led by NOAA's Office of Law Enforcement.

Upwards of 15,000 pounds of fish daily pass through the Gosman family's wholesale fish market, which is the biggest operation in the heart of New York State's largest commercial fishing port.

As part of the plea deal for the company, Bob Gosman Co. Inc. agreed to pay a fine of $50,000 and be placed on probation for four years. The company also would have to implement an Environmental Compliance Plan with enhanced monitoring, training, and inspection requirements. Sentencing has not yet been scheduled.

Quogue Opts Out of Legal Pot Sales

BY TIMOTHY BOLGER

The Village of Quogue has joined the growing list of East End municipalities to opt out of allowing recently legalized recreational marijuana to be sold at pot shops or cannabis cafes within its borders.

The village board unanimously passed the optout legislation at its board meeting on October 15.

"It is the intent of this local law to opt the Village of Quogue out of hosting retail cannabis dispensaries and on-site cannabis consumption establishments within its boundaries," the village code states.

New York State legalized recreational marijuana possession and consumption in March, but towns and villages have until December 31 to decide whether to opt out of allowing sales or on-site consumption in their communities. But since the neighboring Shinnecock Indian Nation announced plans to open a dispensary in Southampton this year, and the tribe is not bound by town laws, some, especially Town of Southampton leaders, have questioned whether opting out would be effective.

The Town of Shelter Island passed a measure in May opting out of sales and on-site consumption of marijuana, the Village of Southampton followed suit in September, and the Village of Westhampton Beach passed a similar law a week before Quogue. The Riverhead Town Board voted down an opt-out proposal in June. Other villages and towns across the East End are debating whether to opt out as well.

The state law allows residents of localities that opt out a chance to petition for a referendum giving voters a chance to decide whether to opt back in. Municipalities that opt out now can also vote to opt back in on their own at a later date.

The First Thanksgiving

BY DAN RATTINER

Most people believe that the first Thanksgiving dinner in America
took place in Plymouth, Mass. in the year 1621. It was a joyous event celebrating the end of the fall harvest and the bond of peace between the English settlers and the local tribe of American Indians.

But now, three recent discoveries have led archaeologists to the conclusion that this dinner was not the first. It turns out that a celebratory dinner between white men and the Montauk Native Americans took place more than 600 years earlier when the Montauk Indians hosted a dinner with 50 Vikings atop of Fort Hill in that town.

The first of the three discoveries leading to this conclusion came in October 2021 when, in L'Anse aux Meadows, Newfoundland, Canada, the remains of eight sod and timber buildings imbedded in the ice there were subsequently carbon dated to the year 1021 - 1,000 years ago.

The second discovery took place this past February, when a piece of a wooden bench was found in the dirt atop Fort Hill that carbon dates, with precise accuracy from measurements made at Fresh Lake University in Voorhees, New Jersey, to November 25, 771, a date even earlier than the discovery at Newfoundland.

And the third discovery happened this summer when new boulders were found at a former Viking settlement in Norway called Bryggenskipett that have elaborate accounts in the Runic language carved on them describing this very encounter during that earlier year of 771. (The account calls the place "the Wstern Lnds" and the Montauks "the Mtakk People" because the runic alphabet has only 16 letters in it). It is from this account that this story can be told.

The arriving Viking party consisted of three enormous longboats with fierce dragon heads at the front, each canoe powered by the rowing of 50 strong slaves overseen by 20 Viking soldiers using whips. Here, 23 days out of Norseland, the ships arrived at a great bay with a hill at the back crowned by a large fort made of leaves and branches.

At the urging of the Vikings, the slaves slid the canoes onto the beach enabling 45 of the 60 Vikings, each carrying a club, to jump out. The remaining 15 were left behind to oversee the slaves.

This was the Viking's annual trip to other lands where Vikings could round up unsuspecting Indigenous peoples and bring them back as new slaves for the Norse people at home. A trip earlier in the year to a closer shore (it was in Ireland) had been aborted when bands of fierce warrior women drove them off. So this new trip was especially important.

On the beach, the Vikings were met by 80 smiling Mtakks – fishermen – who'd seen the canoes arrive and who'd dropped their gear to run over and happily greet these well-turnedout strangers.

Neither side spoke the other's language, so when the Vikings said they had come to capture and enslave some people, the Mtakks, not understanding, instead made the right hand palm-facing-front gesture of peace and pressed the Vikings to follow them up the hill. The Vikings shrugged but then agreed. They wanted the biggest and strongest to bring back, after all. Perhaps they were up the hill.

Climbing breathlessly accompanied by the excited Mtakk, the Vikings now saw a smoky fire at the top and hoped, since they were hungry, that they would be offered some food and beverages to celebrate their arrival. Also, there might be more Mtakk up there. They'd be able to choose wisely but the capture could wait through dessert.

Arriving at the top of the hill, the Mtakk leader, who wore necklaces, fur scarves, and mocassins, spoke and made gestures of welcome to the Vikings. The fire was burning and things to eat were being brought in. The Mtakk leader then gestured toward the canoes on the beach below until the Vikings understood that though the Mtakk were bringing food, as a courtesy, the Vikings should return to their canoes briefly and bring some of theirs up, too.

The Vikings also noticed that the feasting place consisted of bowls set on ground blankets surrounding a fire right on the edge of the brow of the hill looking down at the harbor. It was a great view. But as eating while sitting on the ground would be uncomfortable for the Vikings, the Vikings returned not only with lots of food but also with a long bench upon which they could all sit.

This must have been the bench recently found.

The Mtakk brought turkey, fish, corn, maize, potatoes, beans and vegetables (carrots, broccoli and squash) while the Vikings provided the meat from elks, moose, reindeer and bears, along with many gallons of a tangy drink called mead. Dessert from the Mtakk was pumpkin pie. Dessert from the Viking leader was a special chocolate babka of bread.

As the meal was being served, speeches were made by the Mtakk leader, gesturing and smiling, about the bond between these two people and the joy in having met them. And by Thor, the Viking leader, who described the wonders that awaited what he hoped would be 40 Mtakks they could round up and bring out to the canoes and back to Norseland. The meal went on for three hours.

But when it was over, and the Vikings started rounding up Mtakks in a rather forceful way, others leaped out from behind trees in an adjacent wood, and using strange contraptions involving curved pieces of wood attached to quivering strings the Vikings had never seen before, fired thin spears above the heads of the visiting Vikings, and then when one of the Vikings lifted up a heavy club and advanced, shot him with a single arrow in one of his buttocks.

The Vikings then ran down the hill as fast as they could, leaving the bench behind, crossed the beach, hopped into their giant canoes and fled. No Mtakk went with them. And the Vikings were never seen again.

So this was the first Thanksgiving dinner in America.

As we go to press, we learn that a surfcaster has just found a Viking coinin the surf at Fort Pond Bay. The head of a Viking appears on one side and the words "2 kroner" appear above "In

Past Meets Future with LIU's Digitizing History Project

BY OLIVER PETERSON

The hard work of preserving history has long been left to the unsung heroes at public libraries, universities, government archives and, especially here on Long Island, local historical societies. It's within these mostly underfunded institutions where stewards of our past spend hours thumbing through aging records, difficult-to-read handwritten letters and journals, or exploring old photographs to extract stories from bygone days. But recently, thanks to a $1.5 million grant from the Robert David Lion Gardiner Foundation (RDLGF) and the team at Long Island University's Palmer School of Library and Information Science, the picture of our past is becoming a bit clearer and more accessible for anyone who wants to look.

Started about five years ago, the groundbreaking and important "Digitizing Local History Sources" project has successfully brought more than 65,000 pages of historical materials from 45 participating Long Island historical societies into the bright light of the world wide web.

The project's director, Dr. Gregory Hunter, brought a strong resume of talents to the endeavor. He was hired as a professor at LIU's Palmer School, the region's only library school, in 1990 to establish Long Island's first archivist training program, and he's been running it successfully for over three decades. But the past five years have added more layers to what he and LIU can offer archivists-in-training — not to mention what the RDLGF project is giving the public at large.

"So much of Long Island's history exists now because of dedicated volunteers who for years have been caring for these materials, but the public never knew what they had," Dr. Hunter says. "This has been a long-term goal, a long-term interest of the Gardiner Foundation," he adds later, explaining that RDLGF wanted to get the small historical society collections known to everyone and to reveal the stories within them.

While the work continues, and the grant money dwindles, Hunter and his participating graduate students have already done much to illuminate the history of Long Island communities in both Nassau and Suffolk counties, including a strong East End contingent. Over the last half decade, 10 historical societies from the Hamptons and North Fork have applied and submitted materials to the projects, including Westhampton Beach Historical Society,

East Hampton's Madoo Conservancy, the Ladies Village Improvement Society (LVIS) of East Hampton, Hallockville Museum Farm in Riverhead, Stirling Historical Society of Greenport, Orient's Oysterponds Historical Society, Shelter Island Historical Society, Southold Historical Society, Southampton History Museum and the Railroad Museum of Long Island in Greenport.

Together, the resulting documents - which can now be viewed on the project website, liu.access. preservica.com — are a feast for hungry history buffs and researchers seeking a window into the past. Among the highlights are whaling ship logs and journals, blacksmith and merchant ledgers, years of diaries from a Westhampton schoolgirl in the 1920s, railroad newsletters; church records, meeting minutes, 90-year-old letters, artist Robert Dash's sketchbooks, and a wealth of photographs from various eras.

"We bought probably the best digitization equipment on Long Island, an $85,000 system on campus and then we also were able to put together six portable digitization labs, so prior to COVID I sent students out in teams, sent them out two by two - very biblical," Dr. Hunter says, explaining how the RDL-GF grant helped to do the project's work in-house at LIU and on-location at the various historical societies. In Southold for example, two students went with a portable digitization lab, including a scanner, laptop, cables and everything else they needed to do their job without removing a single page from the building.

Dr. Hunter says their equipment makes it possible to scan bound materials, oversized maps and other items that could be harmed on a standard glass-top office scanner.

"I think the project is important for several reasons," Hunter continues. "One, as we sort of say on the website, we're telling the stories of Long Islanders. That's what really is exciting to me, the hidden stories that we're finding every day as we digitize. ... We just started doing some church sacramental records from 1725 and on page one there's the baptism of a slave, so we're making the stories of Long Islanders accessible. That's the key."

And now that all this material is digitized — with hopefully much more to come if their grant is renewed - Dr. Hunter says the possibilities for what to do with it are endless. "You could do what they call a social network analysis. Take these blacksmith ledgers, take the other merchant ledgers - you could link up with computer technology, you could figure out who was dealing with whom, who was buying, who was selling, what were the paths on Long Island where folks were in contact with one another?" he muses, noting that one just needs to search the term "whaling log" to find all related documents in the archive, which you could then compare with one another to get a more accurate picture. "First we've tried to build the collection, but the research possibilities for everyone, from computer scientists to someone doing their fourthgrade local history curriculum, it's all there."

A major standout in the archive comprises hundreds of photographs from Southampton History Museum, which submitted more than 1,000 negatives from their Bert Morgan Collection. Taken during the 1930s to the 1960s, the black and white images present a never-before-seen record of Southampton's high society during that era.

We do not have the budget nor the expertise to digitize any of our collection, and the Bert Morgan Collection came to us catalogued with names and dates and locations, but they were negatives so it would have been impossible for us to even begin to start digitizing over 1,000 images without the Gardiner Foundation and LIU," Southampton History Museum Executive Director Tom Edmonds says, describing his gratitude for having such a valuable asset brought to life. "The history has been forgotten and this is a great way to document something that happened 70, 80, 90 years ago that has not been recorded in any other way. It captures a lifestyle unique to that period."

The shots, taken by go-to society photographer of the day Bert Morgan, show Southampton's wealthiest residents and celebrities at various events and gatherings, playing in the early days of what is now called the playground of the rich and famous.

"What's coming to light is the history of the summer colony. That's what we call the group of very wealthy New Yorkers who came to Southampton and saved it from tanking. Southampton was a very, very poor agrarian village until 1870, and then rich people moved in and gave everybody jobs and increased the economy, and locals were able to survive because of the wealthy income and the needs they had," Edmonds explains, adding, "This document ... it also puts Southampton on a national scope because a lot of the people who are in the images were celebrities at the time and still are."

Among the most interesting shots, such as pictures from debutant parties and Henry Ford II's wedding, are a series of photos taken during a costume party inside a bomb shelter, built as Cold War fears began to take hold in the United States, at the Blue Haven mansion. "They decorated it so it looked like the New York City nightclub El Morocco," Edmonds says, marveling at the odd images. "They had banquettes and zebra patterns, and they had waiters and a fancy bar. ... There are famous people doing the Twist, and making cocktails and they're just having fun in what looks like El Morocco but it's actually a bomb shelter on their property."

Describing one of his favorite photographs, Edmonds points out, "The owner of Blue Haven who built this, during the party he was dressed up like the devil and he's shaking two different kinds of liquor into a punch bowl. It's hilarious."

If the project continues, Edmonds says he'd next like to submit a collection of glass negatives showing local people going out on picnics in the 1890s. "We'll have both sides of the society here. It's an amazing project. ... All thanks go to the Robert David Lion Gardiner Foundation," the museum director adds.

"Archivists, folks in my field, we don't just want to preserve the records of the great white fathers, the political leaders, the Jeffersons, the Madisons," Dr. Hunter says. "We understand that community history is important, that individual stories of people should be preserved. That everyone should be able to understand their heritage and their neighborhood."

Dr. Hunter says he's currently waiting to find out if RDLGF will extend their grant so the project can continue. If given the green light, he will begin taking new applications from historical societies, especially those that may have missed the first opportunity.

Power Women of Long Island Honored

On Thursday, November 18th, Schneps Media, publishers of Dan's Papers, the Long Island Press and Noticia honored extraordinary women at the Power Women of Long Island. The event was an opportunity for celebration and power networking as the honorees and their guests were able to make important connections. Schneps Media is proud to create and support this powerful community. Learn more about upcoming events at SchnepsMedia.com and email Events@SchnepsMedia.com to nominate, attend or sponsor.

100% of the evening's raffle proceeds went to support Life's WORC, celebrating fifty years of helping people with developmental disabilities and autism.

Orient, Furthest Point East on the North Fork: 'The Ultimate Getaway from It All'

BY TAYLOR K. VECSEY

East End real estate has been on fire during the pandemic with some hamlets hotter than others, but the buying frenzy has certainly caught up to Orient, the furthest point out on the North Fork, in recent months.

"We have seen an increase in selling prices across the board on the North Fork, and Orient is a historic hamlet that is very special and is definitely one of the hamlets on the North Fork leading the pack in desirability and price appreciation," says Lori Feilen of Town & Country Real Estate.

Surrounded by water on three sides, Orient has "more of a Martha's Vineyard/New England feel," which is attractive to buyers, Feilen says. "As the last, most furthest east hamlet of the North Fork, it has retained almost a 1950s feel still deeply connected to its waterfront and agricultural past." She adds that it is currently following a price trajectory most similar to Amagansett.

"Home prices have risen from the early 1990s when Orient village homes were selling for $100,000 and have doubled 4.5 times over the last 11 years," she says. Non-waterfront homes have sold recently for upwards of $2.5 million and waterfront has sold for up to $10 million.

Susan Orioli and Alexis Veryzer of NOFO Real Estate agree and point to Multiple Listing Service data for 2021 that shows the North Fork, thus far, has an approximate median sales price of $1,725,000.

The charm and rural character lure people to Orient, they believe, even if it does take them longer to get there. "We have many buyers seeking waterfront in Orient, but with the limited inventory, these buyers have turned to interior properties with spacious land and beach access. Many buyers desire being as far east as possible — to them this is the ultimate getaway from it all."

Town & Country's third-quarter market report showed that Orient, which includes East Marion and Greenport for its analysis, is struggling with inventory, perhaps more than any other area on the North Fork. The number of home sales was down by 75% and total sales volume dropped at nearly the same rate landing at a 73.08% drop with only six sales in the third-quarter.

"Yet in this market, median home sale price shot up 22.72% year-to-year same quarter," the report says.

"The cohesiveness of a small hometown feeling in the village is a big draw," Orioli and Veryzer continue.

THE PROPERTY AT 825 STEPHENSONS ROAD IN ORIENT SOLD IN MAY FOR $4.17 MILLION.

"Homeowners have candles in their windows at night and children attend functions at the Orient Yacht Club, being able to ride bicycles at all hours of the day or night with complete safety. The architecture of these historic homes is superb with many unique characteristics and many have a legacy or were owned by a famous artist or sculptor."

The charming historic district boasts about 175 period homes dating back to the 1670s and early 1900s. The country store dates back to the 1770s and the downtown area offers a post office, a patisserie, ice cream and even a dumpling shop. The expansive Oysterponds Historical Society compound is open to the public.

Earlier this year, one of the most iconic homes in Orient, located at 825 Stephensons Road, traded for $4.17 million with Feilen representing the property. It first went on the market in June of 2020 for $4.775 million and was taken off the market in September of that year. It was listed again in April of 2021 for the same price and quickly found a buyer, who closed on May 26.

Its location along the Orient Causeway makes it one of the most recognizable homes in the area as it can easily be seen upon entering the historic hamlet.

"This home, in particular, dates back to 1868 and was part of a large family compound located just over the causeway in a private estate enclave known as "The Hill" set on five acres with 475 feet of private beachfront on the Long Island Sound," she explains. It also offers 180-degree views from every room and multi-level decks. "The home itself had undergone a beautiful and intensive restoration introducing modern luxuries and design to the interior spaces," she says. "It was a fantastic opportunity for a new family to obtain a very special piece of Orient's historic housing stock in a rarely available estate setting and location."

THE HOME AT 1000 SOUNDVIEW ROAD WAS COMPLETELY REDONE AFTER IT WAS PURCHASED IN

New construction and homes that have undergone major renovations are also in demand. Orioli and Veryzer recently sold 1000 Soundview Road, just one block from the Sound, at full-ask for $1.449 million on September 20. It sold in 2018 for $658,500.

The custom-finished 1,850-square-foot home included a brand new kitchen with an elongated quartz waterfall island, Ann Sachs tile, a Wolf six-burner stove, and Sub-Zero and Miele appliances. The master ensuite bedroom featured a walk-in closet on one side of the house and the two additional ensuite bedrooms are on the other side, providing ideal separation of living space for family or guests.

A modern home built in 2020 at 1055 North View Drive with water views from the living room, bedrooms and rooftop deck was said to be, "Channeling the California coast in one of Orient's most soughtafter and private neighborhoods," according to the Compass listing. Records show it went on the market in October 2020 for $2.495 million, underwent a price reduction to $2.195 million in April 2021, and then sold for over-ask at $2.25 million in June.

INSURANCE ADVISER

What is Excess Uninsured Motorist Insurance Coverage?

Umbrella insurance policies are affordable coverage and the better insurance companies offer excess under/uninsured motorist insurance coverage on the umbrella.

Why is this important? Under/uninsured motorists are those drivers on the roadways that do not have any liability insurance at all on their vehicle or have minimum or to little coverage.

Let's say you are hit by a motorist that is carrying $25,000 per person, $50,000 per accident and $10,000 property damage. This person has the minimum liability insurance allowed by NYS law. What if the other driver caused you serious injuries, loss of wages and pain and suffering that exceed the $25,000 under their policy, You very well might be able to collect under your auto insurance and Umbrella policies under/uninsured motorist

The bodily injury portion of your umbrella policy only covers the other party(s) if the accident is deemed to be your fault. It would not pay anything to you since you cannot be liable to yourself. If the damages to you or others in your vehicle exceed their coverages then the under/uninsured motorist coverage on your auto policy covers you. The under/uninsured motorist coverage on your umbrella would kick in after the coverage on your auto policy is exhausted.

In addition to this column's insurance tip of the week, I want readers to know they can call me for advice, questions or any coverage concerns at any time at 1-866-964-4434.

Honoring This Week's Cover Artist:

David Bowers

DAVID BOWERS

BY DAVID TAYLOR

The November 26, 2021, cover of Dan's Papers comes to us from talented Florida-based artist David Bowers. Currently repped by Ric Michel Fine Art in New York and galleries across the country, Bowers has designed over one hundred book covers, had his artwork featured on the cover of magazines such as Time, painted portraits of influential figures such as J.P. Morgan and the Rothschild family, and earned countless awards for his illustrations and fine art. Here, he explains his process for creating "White Meat," studying the work of the old masters and more.

What inspired this week's cover art, "White Meat?"

I was visiting with a friend who had a stuffed turkey he shot during hunting season along with a pretty model that was willing to pose for me. I loved the contrast between the beauty and the beast, so the idea just kind of morphed into an idea. The title is a play on words. In my opinion, I don't believe that wild turkeys have much white meat, but you can use your imagination to fill in the rest.

How was this piece created? Walk us through your process.

I first begin with small brown ink sketches to establish the composition. From there, I use friends and sometimes family or professional models to pose for me in which I take numerous photographs. These photographs are then pieced together from my favorite photos to produce the final drawing.

For example, I may use a hand from one photo or facial expression from another one and combine them to get the look that I'm after. After the drawing is completed, I'll enlarge photocopy and transfer the image onto the linen. The underpainting is the next step and usually begins with burnt sienna or burnt umber, very much like some of the old masters. Now the tedious work when begins I apply many layers working

from background to foreground. This process continues until I'm satisfied with the final result.

What makes this artwork such an ideal fit for a Dan's Papers cover?

I'm assuming it's for the Thanksgiving issue.

How would you describe your art style, and how did you develop it?

I describe my work as "realism with an edge." The idea is always the most challenging part of the process. I would never be satisfied by just painting a still-life of a bowl of fruit or a painting without some type of concept. In my opinion, it is all about the concept

I'm pretty much self-taught because we had very few painting classes when I went to art school many years ago. I've studied the old masters' work for many years by visiting some of the greatest museums of the world. I once was scolded at the Frick in NYC because I was too close to a Vermeer painting. When visiting museums, I do my best to find an area where the guards are not around so I can study the paint layers with a magnifying glass.

What artistic accomplishment are you most proud of?

When I was an illustrator at the beginning of my career, I was fortunate azine and many other prominent publications, like Wine Spectator and Cigar Aficionado. When I transitioned into fine art, I'm just so grateful that I've made a living from my studio for over 30 years.

enough to do the cover for Time mag-

What do you find most rewarding about being an artist?

The fact that I can create whatever I want is awesome. I had to use an alarm clock to get up in the morning when I was an instructor at art school in Pittsburgh, PA and now it's so easy to get up early and go to my studio and begin my day at the easel. I am very passionate about my work.

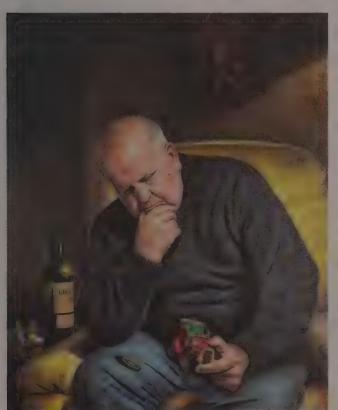

Where can your work be seen in the coming weeks, both online and up close?

You can see some of my work on my website or view originals at Gallery 1261 in Denver, Lovetts Gallery in Tulsa and Palm Avenue Fine Art in Sarasota. Ric Michel in New York has been showing my work on his website for many years and is a true gentleman. He had one of my paintings this year that didn't sell and had no problem at all sending it to the Tulsa gallery because they had an interested client that bought the painting.

Would you like to share any closing thoughts?

There are many great artists in the field, so it is very humbling that I can make a good living selling my paintings. It is an awesome career that makes me smile every day!

Lee Greenwood:

Proud to Play the Suffolk Theater

LEE GREENWOOD

BY DAVID TAYLOR

Widely known for his signature song of two names, "God Bless the U.S.A. (Proud to Be an American)," Lee Greenwood is no one-hit wonder. With seven No.1 country hits and a presidential induction into the National Council on the Arts, he'll be celebrating 40 years of success at the Suffolk Theater in Riverhead on Friday, December 3.

After nearly 20 years of playing the Las Vegas lounge revue scene, Greenwood was discovered in 1979 by Larry McFaden of MCA/Paramount, who became his manager. His first single, "It Turns Me Inside Out," cracked top 20 on the 1981 country charts.

In 1984, Greenwood released the album You've Got a Good Love Comin' which was mostly made up of romantic power ballads, but also included one now-famous patriotic number to add some variety. "I did not expect it to be played on radio," he admits, remembering that it was the head of the record label who pushed for "God Bless the U.S.A." to receive a single release. After reaching No.7 on the Billboard country chart, it began receiving widespread national attention. It has opened doors for Greenwood to perform at the 1984

Republican National Convention, at the White House, on the USS Nimitz in the Persian Gulf and at the Lincoln Memorial inauguration celebrations for Presidents George H. W. Bush and Donald Trump.

The song was even adapted into children's book form, titled Proud to Be an American, and into the song "God Bless You Canada." While an unpredictable smash hit, "God Bless the U.S.A." is just one of Greenwood's many successful tracks.

"Music is my life; it's what I do," he says. "I don't rest on the laurels of 'God Bless the U.S.A.' no matter how big it is in my life."

Though he's not as motivated to write new material these days, throughout his career, he was inspired by words: billboards, catch phrases, conversations and even other song lyrics. He would home in on one key thought or feeling and expand that into an original piece, using unexpected words to convey relatable ideas.

"The writing is like a child," he says.
"When you finish a song, you want to play it for everybody like, 'Hey, look at my new child!"

This mindset helped him earn two No.1 country hits from his 1983 album Somebody's Gonna Love You, one for his 1985 cover of King Edward IV and the Knights' "Dixie Road," three more from that year's studio album Streamline and one more from the 1986 album Love Will Find Its Way to You. In 1990, he nearly took the No.1 spot for the eighth time, with "Holdin' a good Hand" peaking at no:2.

In 2008, President George W. Bush appointed Greenwood to the National Council of the Arts, a role which Greenwood considers an "important responsibility (because) culture is framed by our art." He and other councilmembers were charged with the task of discovering artists of cultural validity to the U.S. and arranging grants to fund their art. While the position typically abides by a six-year term, the Senate has yet to accept a replacement nomination by President Joe Biden, allowing Greenwood to remain as one of the council's longest members.

Now celebrating 40 years of hit songs, Greenwood is touring the country and stopping at numerous venues where he hopes to connect with fans from far and wide. "I would like to make sure that we touch base with our audience in New York," he says ahead of his first-ever Suffolk Theater show. "I love performing onstage, love singing; it's just something that thrills me, and I hope it resonates with the audience, as well."

Though he's new to Suffolk Theater, he's no stranger to Long Island. In fact, he recently joined The Chainsmokers, Journey, Wyclef Jean, Flo Rida and other big acts at Jones Beach for a concert to benefit the Tunnel to Towers Foundation, which build smart homes for injured veterans, among other programs. Similarly, Greenwood works closely with HelpingAHero.org, which provides specially adapted homes to injured vets.

While he's no one hit wonder, Greenwood admits that going to any concert and not hearing that one song, can certainly be disappointing (for him, Sting's "Desert Rose" comes to mind). So Suffolk Theater fans can expect "God Bless the U.S.A." as well as the "majority of the hits that brought us to radio and enhanced my career," he shares. No medleys though — he's learned that the fans want the full experience of their favorite track, not a soundbite.

For tickets to Lee Green-wood's show at the Suffolk Theater on December 3 at 7 p.m., visit suffolktheater.com. And to discover more of Greenwood's project, such as his God Bless the U.S.A. Bible and Soldier Valley Spirits whiskey, visit leegreenwood.com.

Victoria's Shink is SCHNEPS-YUNIS

uring the busy season for Dan's Papers this summer, I was invited to a Hamptons International Film Festival afterparty at a poolside home hidden in the woods of East Hampton.

It was a picture-perfect day and there I met Hamptonite Wendy Federman, the talented, multi Tony Award winning Broadway producer.

For years I had been receiving her company's press releases, and now she was sitting next to me enjoying the company of many theatre and film people.

We instantly bonded. She is a fiery woman, standing 5 feet tall with blonde hair and a beautiful face, and has produced more than 90 Broadway shows, a true "Power Woman."

When she called last week and asked me to be her "date" at the opening night of "Company," one of the shows she recently produced, I instantly accepted.

The great Patti LuPone returned to her brilliant role of Joanne, starring alongside a show stopping cast led by Katrina Lenk.

Wendy and I decided to have dinner before the show and I wanted to go to Skirt Steak, a new restaurant in the Theatre District owned by world famous Chef Laurent Tourondel. I had just met him and his partner at his newest addition in Westhampton, LT Bar & Grill. I had taken my grandkids there a few weeks ago for the restaurant's juicy burgers, but we were blown away by their over the top and delicious ice cream floats! Worth every calorie!

We headed to Skirt Steak, but sadly they had an emergency and were closed. After four calls, we finally got reservations at well known Bridgehampton icon Bobby Van's restaurant on West 45th Street, just down the block from the Bernard B. Jacobs Theatre, where "Company" was being performed. I learned many years ago that the

When we pulled up to the theatre, there was a line wrapping around to the corner. I could feel the electricity and excitement of the people waiting patiently to be vetted for their vaccination cards and IDs in what turned out to be a sold out, standing room only per-

Our Amazing History: Rum Running

BY DAN RATTINER

In October 1919, after much protesting by leaders of the temperance movement — mostly women who couldn't stand their husbands coming home drunk every night — the federal government passed the 18th Amendment. It became illegal to sell alcoholic beverages in America in January 1920.

For the next 13 years, federal agents, Coast Guardsmen, revenuers, bootleggers and rumrunners played a glorious game of cat and mouse on Long Island. Prohibition was finally repealed in 1933.

During this time, the community of Montauk played a central role in this game because at this faraway, wooded peninsula, it was fairly easy — especially at night — for a ship from England delivering cases of Scotch to meet up with a small fishing boat 12 miles offshore — the limit of American jurisdiction — for the transfer of that illegal material.

The fishing boat operators, fishermen out of Montauk by day and rumrunners by night, would arrive back at the beach to transfer the boxes to the bootleggers, who often drove trucks with false bottoms, so if searched nothing would come up. The bootleggers took the boxes to New York

City and some speakeasy with a peephole where, if somebody asked, the person on the other side of the door would say, "Joe sent me."

Needless to say, people working in this illegal industry did very well for themselves. And later, after prohibition ended, there were many stories to tell.

A favorite was at a nightspot in Montauk known as the Deep Sea Club. A harmless fisherman's club by day, it transformed itself into a speakeasy at night, complete with loose women, gambling, entertainment and liquor. Located on Star Island, there was a stone guardhouse at the head of the causeway leading out to Star Island and if the feds were seen coming, those in the booth could say one word over a telephone line and in five minutes the place would transform itself back into a fishermen's club.

Famously, the mayor of New York, Jimmy Walker, was in that club one night when the district attorney's men pounced suddenly and without warning. The mayor got through it by throwing a dish towel over his arm and masquerading as a waiter.

The Coast Guard had fast boats. And one early morning just after dawn, a surfcaster and his son at Shagwong Point watched a Coast Guard boat chasing a stripped-down fishing boat and slowly gaining on him, until the captain of that boat had his mate throw the boxes overboard into the bay one at a time, which allowed the fishing boat to speed up and get away. Later that day, the surfcaster and his son were out in the water in a rowboat finding the boxes on the bay bottom just where the two had seen them dropped.

There was the time a big truck supposedly filled with furniture turned on its side while trying to negotiate the hills on the Old Montauk Highway. It had hit a rock and fallen sideways with a great crash of broken glass, followed by a rush of whiskey pouring out onto the street. This happened right in front of Gurney's Inn. That place was run by Ma Gurney at the time, a dry retreat for those who did not imbibe. And it offered church in a meeting room every Sunday morning — but what was that smell?

One week, the situation got so bad that the revenuers held a press conference to announce that a Coast Guard military operation with seaplanes, picket boats, and Navy cutters would flush out all those rumrunners and bootleggers at Montauk. But the four-day operation simply resulted in all those involved lying low until it was over. Then, with the so-called "Dry Navy" gone, they resumed the operation as before.

The Montauk fishing village lost a big revenue source when rum running ended. But it was fun while it lasted.

TownLine BBQ Chef Recipe, New Fall Menus & More

CHEF BILL VALENTINE

BY HARRY POWERS

This week, chef/pitmaster Bill Val-L entine of TownLine BBQ offers these pork steaks and "Texas Wet Mop" as a stimulating addition to your fall home recipes. But first, let's dig in to some East End foodie news.

Stop your whining! The wine classes are back at Park Place Wines and Liquors in East Hampton — its instore wine classes resume on Thursday, December 2. The tasting will focus on the wines of the Pacific Northwest, which have been described as "some of the greatest American wines that you never knew existed." Park Place credits the area's diverse grape varieties and excellent winemakers who make quality wines at a solid value. Class size is limited to just 10 people for safe spacing, and participants must show proof of vaccination. Early registration is available in the store or on parkplacewines.com. And it's just $10.

Manna at Lobster Inn continues its educational aquaculture program "Manna Mondays," featuring guest speakers and presentations on Monday, November 29. Aram Terchun and Laura Fabrizio of Moriches Bay Project discuss the Moriches Bay Project, oyster farming, seaweed and restoration of habitats. Spearheaded by coowner Donna Lanzetta and sponsored by the Manna Ocean Foundation, this program is designed to educate the public about aquaculture through guest speakers including farmers, fishermen, authors and educators. Manna Monday begins at 6 p.m. and is free of charge unless otherwise noted.

In other Manna news, the restaurant has announced several offseason specials: Early Catch Prix Fixe ($29 three-course prix fixe on Monday from 3-6 p.m.), Tuesday is Lobster Night (half-priced steamed lobster dinner 1 to 1 1/2 lb steamed lobster with corn on the cob and garlic potatoes); Game Night (darts, board games, video games and bar bingo! $5 draft beers); Kickoff Sundays (BOGO draft beers and house wine and bar menu deals) and Happy Hour (Sunday through Thursday from 3-6 p.m. featuring $5 draft beers and house wines and Buck a Shuck $1 oysters). Manna at Lobster Inn is closed on Wednesdays.

Elaia Estiatorio has collaborated with renowned chef, food stylist and recipe developer Jodi Moreno, founder of What's Cooking Good Looking, to bring a new dish to the Hamptons through Tuesday, November 30. As an ode to Greek co-owner Sofia Crokos' favorite childhood dish, they partnered to recreate lamb fricassee, staying true to the authentic recipe while adding personal touches.

Salvatore's, the sprawling Italian American eatery in Hampton Bays, now serves brunch starting at 11 a.m. on Sundays. They offer chicken and waffles, parmigiana heroes, smoked salmon Benedict and even pastas. Mangia!

Baron's Cove in Sag Harbor offers a new fall menu featuring seasonal fall fare and locally sourced ingredients from around the East End and beyond. Highlights from executive chef Nicholas Vogel's new menu include truffle potato gnocchi with herb and shallot cream sauce, truffle pâté and parmesan; scallops a la plancha with grenobloise, cherry tomato and frisée; grilled cauliflower steak with local broccoli, crispy new potatoes, citrus labneh, salsa verde; a local fish of the day sourced from Montauk; moules frites with gar-

Recipe: TownLine BBQ Pork Steaks

Directions:

- 1. Cut 1 whole, bone-in pork butt cut into 3" thick slices (yields 3 or 4 steaks)
- 2. Season the meat liberally with SPG++ (Salt, Pepper + Garlic). Season the meat the day before putting it on the pit.
- 3. Plan to cook it in a smoker for about 3-4 hours at 210-250 degrees F.
- 4. Mop the pork steaks liberally with Texas Wet Mop four or five times during the cook. Once the meat becomes tender and the fat begins to crisp on the edges, take it off the pit. Internal temp should be at least 165 F
- 5. This cut doesn't have to be falling apart to be done. Let it rest for 30 minutes, then slice against the grain and serve with your favorite barbecue sauce and sides.
 - 6. Enjoy!

SPG++ Ingredients

(yields about a pound once all ingredients combined)

- 10 oz Kosher salt
- 4 oz Black pepper
- 2.5 oz Granulated garlic
- o.8 oz Granulated onion
- o.8 oz Cayenne pepper
- 0.8 oz Chili powder

Wet Mop Ingredients

- 6 oz SPG++
- 1 qt Vegetable oil
- 1.5 cup Worcestershire sauce
- 1 qt Cider vinegar

Something to Wine About:

2018 RGNY Scielo Tinto

BY LINDA DELMONICO PRUSSEN

ooking for a lovely, elegant, lighter-bodied, red to add to your Thanksgiving table? The 2018 Scielo Tinto may be the perfect fit. This is another wonderful Long Island Bordeaux-style wine.

The 2018 RGNY Scielo Tinto is comprised of 43% merlot, 37% cabernet sauvignon, 10% cabernet Franc and 10% petit verdot. The wine is a gorgeous, luminous, garnet color. It's truly stunning in the glass. Delightfully dry, this wine has notes of raspberry, blueberry, caramelized cherry, chocolate and light notes of baking spice. It is silky smooth and can pair, without competing, with a wide variety of foods such as ham, sweet potatoes, even turkey with brown gravy.

RGNY winemaker Lilia Perez says of this wine, "My inspiration to make the Tinto came from having lived and trained in Bordeaux. I wanted to see how these grapes blended together would make a Bordeaux-style wine with Long Island personality."

A quick reminder on Bordeaux and Bordeaux-style wines, a true Bordeaux wine must be from the Bordeaux region in France and adhere to the standards set by that region. A red Bordeaux must have one, or a combination, of the five noble grapes: cabernet sauvignon, merlot, cabernet franc, petit verdot and malbec. Occasionally a sixth grape, carménère, is included. Noble grapes are known to retain their character no matter where planted, and are known to produce top quality wine.

If talk of Bordeaux-style wines has you curious, or if you are looking for a unique gift for a Bordeaux wine lover on your gift list, RGNY has a blending kit you can purchase and blend your own Bordeaux-style wine. And, when you are done experimenting as a winemaker, you can compare your creation with the 2018 RGNY Scielo Tinto as a full bottle is included in the kit. The 2018 RGNY Scielo Tinto retails fo $30.

Premier fitness equipment sales and service company Gym Tech has been allowing fitness gurus and those just trying to stay fit to bring the workout to the comfort of their home for more than 22 years at showrooms across Long Island, including in Southampton.

Randy King, who has been serving the Hamptons for 27 years and is considered an expert when it comes to exercise equipment, brought an extra layer of passion when he joined the team this fall at the Southampton Gym Tech that wants to help Hampton part-time and full-time residents create their perfect home gym.

What drew King, along with his colleagues like Southampton Gym Tech owner Sal Strazzeri, was a passion for fitness, and helping customers improve their fitness, and intrigue with the design of the machines.

"I was intrigued by the different types and how many machines there were," says King, who also owns Shinnecock Functional Fitness - an East End rubber flooring sales/install company. "Fitness is a way of life for some people, and it should be taken seriously. The tools necessary to get you physically fit to where you want to be can run the gamut, from something as simple as an exercise band to some of the most bio-mechanically advanced machines available."

Gym Tech sells treadmills, ellipticals, exercise bikes, step climbers, indoor cycling machines, rowing machines, free weights and much more. Part of the process that goes into deciding what machine is best for the customer, King says, is efficient use

"We only sell the best here," King notes. "We understand that our clientele has limited time when they're out here on Eastern Long Island and a lot of time is spent dealing with vacation homes, and there's limited time for everybody. So, you want to maximize your workout and use the best machines possible that will get you physically fit. Not only is it important to maximize time, but it is also wise to maximize space at a time when going to a public gym may not be the safest; or most comfortable, option during the COVID-19 pandemic.

"We take the needs from the ground up, literally from the rubber gym flooring, up," King says. "We consider the room itself. Is the room laid out nicely to accommodate what your vision is for your home gym? Where are the windows at? Where are the closets at? Are there floor outlets in the room to mitigate any tripping hazards with cords?" The design/layout process we provide includes, but is not limited to floor space, ceiling heights, lighting, mirrors, TV placement, AV options and, equally as important, the wall colors, ceiling colors and the flooring type and color. Once we can determine all of these factors, we then provide back to the client a scaled layout in 2D and 3D format."

Gym Tech has earned the reputation as the go-to company with the architects, interior designers and contractors servicing the Long Island residential and commercial fitness community for both its design capabilities and the brands it carries such as Precor, True, Hoist, Octane, Star Trac, Stairmaster and Ecore rubber flooring along with all the accessories to make them a one-stop shopping experience.

Gym Tech has locations in Southampton, Woodbury, Greenwich, NYC and New Jersey to service both residential and commercial clients

Find Your Perfect Christmas Tree on the North Fork

THERE'S SOMETHING SO CHRISTMAS-Y ABOUT TAKING THE FAMILY TO PICK OUT THIS YEAR'S TREE.

BY DAVID TAYLOR

With Thanksgiving now behind us, it's the ideal time to pick out a tree for the Christmas season. For many of us, no artificial tree will do — we need that fresh pine smell and outdoorsy essence. Plus, making a day out of cutting down the family Christmas tree can create a memorable holiday tradition. The North Fork has about a half dozen tree farms you'll want to consider for all your holiday tree shopping needs.

DARTS CHRISTMAS TREE FARM

Those looking for more dramatic, vibrant tree colors than even blue spruces can offer, may want to venture into the Magic Color Forest at Darts. These fantastical Fraser firs have been reportedly transformed by magic, resulting in wild colors like bubble gum pink, snowfall white, sugar plum purple, deep sea azure and more. This holiday fantasy is open daily, 9 a.m.-5 p.m. 2355 Main Road, Southold. 631-369-1300, dartschristmastreefarm.com

FINK'S COUNTRY FARM

This Wading River farm has been offering a wide selection of Christmas trees for about five decades, and its's still going strong. Visitors can choose from Douglas, Fraser, concolor (white) and noble fir trees, as well as wreaths and roping. Get there at 9 a.m. when they open each day to beat the rush. Guests may even see Santa on weekend afternoon through December 19. 6242 Middle Country Road, Wading River. 631-886-2272, finksfarm.com

LEWIN FARMS

Head into Lewin Farms' Baiting Hollow Nursery for the perfect tree — either pre-cut or ready to be. These trees include Douglas fir, blue spruce and Norway spruce ranging in size from 1–15 feet tall, though all cost the same $45 (cash only). Lucky visitors may even find a large white pine amid the greens and blues. 812 Sound Avenue, Calverton. 631-929-4327, lewinfarm.com

SANTA'S CHRISTMAS TREE FARM

Peruse over 8,000 Douglas firs, each standing about 6–7 feet tall with appealing shape and density. Santa's little helpers will assist as you cut down your chosen tree and tie it to your vehicle at no extra charge. Be sure to call ahead for info on Santa photo-ops, ice skating and more holiday fun. The 28-acre farm and Christmas shop are open daily 10 a.m.-5 p.m. 30105 Main Road, Cutchogue. 631-735-9242, santaschristmastreefarm.com

SHAMROCK CHRISTMAS TREE FARM

Family owned and operated since 1987, this farm offers a solid mix of tree options for the family to choose from: Douglas firs in the field, standing 5–9 feet tall; pre-cut Fraser firs, 7–12 feet tall; 4-foot potted spruce trees; 5-foot balled trees; and 4-foot Charlie Brown trees. They also offer customized tabletop centerpieces, wreaths and other decorations, plus gifts, wine and more. They're open daily, 8 a.m.–5 p.m. 20685 Main Road, Mattituck. 631-298-4619, shamrock-christmastreefarm.com

ZUHOSKI FARMS

This 70-acre farm includes 15 acres devoted to choice Christmas trees, ready to cut. They've also got wreaths, roping, kissing balls, and maybe even visits from Santa on weekend afternoons through December 12. They're open 9:30 a.m. to dusk, seven days a week. 11825 Oregon Road, Cutchogue. 631-734-5036, zuhoskitreefarm.com

KNOW YOUR CHRISTMAS TREES

White Pine: The largest pine tree in the U.S. is a classic choice for Christmas. It's got soft green needles and an almost bush-like appearance, despite its towering height. And it doesn't shed too much, making cleanup much easier.

Douglas Fir: One of the most popular and versatile Christmas tree options on the East End, sporting that classic holiday green and sweet scent. Its branches are more dispersed than the white pine, making ornament visibility a non-issue.

Fraser Fir: Another solid green option, with a great smell and strong durability. Its branch density falls somewhere between the white pine and the Douglas fir, making it both lush and ideal for ornaments.

Concolor (White) Fir: This tree has a nice symmetrical shape and soft needles, with a color that tends to lean more toward more of a pale green or blue than its fellow firs.

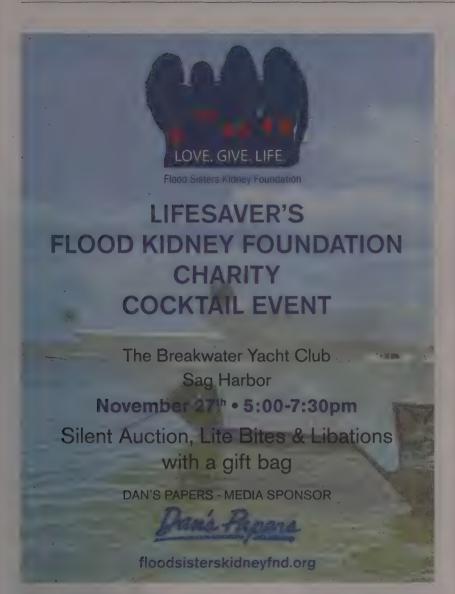

Noble Fir: This is a green tree with a narrow base and horizontal branches that add to its minimalist charm — decorations or bare, it looks great in just about any Christmas setting.

Blue Spruce: For those who aren't so keen on green, these trees come in blue, teal and gray, and they feature extra strong branches and a low shed rate. Beware the needles, though, because those pricks will hurt.

Norway Spruce: It's got a dark green color, strong branches and sharp needles, though not quite as prickly as the blue spruce.

KAST THE LIVING

Celebrating Hamptons Celebrities:

Harris Yulin

HARRIS YULIN

BY DANNY FRANK

the end of November, Vienna, which is for initial broadcast on YouTube.com. It's about the relationship between Sigmund Freud and Carl Jung. I'm Freud and my old colleague, Stacy Keach is Jung. We did this on our computers through Zoom. Stacy did this from home in Poland, and I was in Bridgehampton, together with a writer, Jim McGrath. I don't know how the whole thing works!" This description is from the highly credentialed, accredited actor, Harris Yulin who celebrated his 84th birthday this month.

You'd recognize Yulin from his abundance of roles in movies, television shows and plays. For example, he actually goes back with Stacy Keach to 1971 when they both starred in Doc, one of Yulin's first film roles. Keach played Doc Holliday and Yulin portrayed Wyatt Earp.

Prior to Vienna, Yulin participated in a reading of The Soap Myth at the Jewish Center of the Hamptons. Yulin is interested in content related to the Holocaust. This play has had a whole schedule of readings where Yulin was preceded by Richard Dreyfus and the late Ed Asner. Yulin says, "The Holocaust continues to be a topic of plays, movies and new written material because it was a period so horrific having taken place in the Western world. It has garnered more impact for many reasons. Such an event continues to come to some kind of understanding beyond blaming the perpetrators. ... How did this happen? How can people get to this point when they could commit such acts?'

Another Hamptons credit from several years ago was when Yulin starred as Richard Nixon in Frost/Nixon at Bay Street Theater in Sag Harbor.

Yulin began renting places in the Hamptons about 25 years ago. "(Then) about 17 years ago I decided to buy in Bridgehampton. The ocean is the main reason. I was brought up by the ocean in California. It is the 'great mother' for me. It is close to New York where I often work."

Yulin occasionally travels to California for work and some leisure. "My favorite spots are in Mendocino County and San Francisco. I like the Sonoma wine country. I enjoy the Big Sur in Monterey."

As a character actor often called upon for authoritative, imperious parts, Yulin is remembered for his role as a crooked police officer in the 1983 film Scarface. "It was a surprise to me that this production would become such a major hit. I never figured it would have such an impact where it has become a cult in some respects. People still come up to me 40 years later and ask me about this movie."

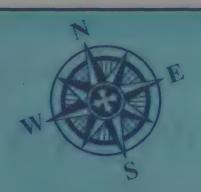

But Yulin's most challenging role? "The first half of Lear was one of the most difficult parts I had to master. And I have played Claudius three times trying to get it right. And, Propsero, I would like to improve on that ..."

Harris Yulin has done his fair share of directing and is a recipient of the Lucille Lortel Award for Directing for The Trip to Bountiful at Manhattan's Signature Theatre.

Yulin waxes on one of his contemporaries, the late Eli Wallach (a Hamptonite) who he sometimes collaborated with, and who worked right up until his passing at age 98. "In his later years, he could seem somewhat uncertain. Yet, when he started playing a scene, he was transformed into a much younger, more active, more vigorous man ... an amazing actor. ... I watched him with awe. I hope I can go on with some of that energy and quality ..."

Watch Harris Yulin in Ozark seasons 1 and 2 (2017–18) on Netflix. He is actively writing a one-character play — part autobiography, part fiction — connected with William Shakespeare.

Health on the Frontlines:

Where We Are with COVID Today

The good news is that therapeutic oral antiviral pills and ready made IV and injectable antibodies will dramatically reduce death rates and hospitalizations in the next few months.

BY PETER MICHALOS, MD

COVID — it's not over but hope is here. The original alpha variant, the COVID-19 virus that was first reported in Wuhan, China, has subsided and new delta variants have become the dominant strains.

The vaccines and boosters we currently have make antibodies for the original alpha variant, therefore we are seeing more breakthrough cases in vaccinated populations. Even though vaccinated people are getting infected and can infect others, vaccines continue to dramatically reduce hospitalizations and death. The reality is that vaccines put pressure on viruses to mutate as viruses want to survive and evade the antibodies created to stop them. This is why we update the influenza vaccine every year to combat the new annual emerging strains. New vaccines will be needed to combat the new emerging COVID variants. Vaccines alone cannot stop a pandemic or reduce hospitalizations and death.

The coronavirus infection has an early replication phase where it rapidly multiplies the first three to five days and then as an inflammatory phase that can cause inflammatory fluid to accumulate in the lungs and makes it hard to breathe. The amazing Regeneron COVID antibodies created in New York by George Yancopoulos MD, Ph.D and Dr. Christos Kyratsous Ph.D (both Columbia University graduates), have been amazing in stopping hospitalizations and death when given immediately within days after infection.

Other amazing oral antivirals like Molnipiravir, which blocks all variants of coronavirus, goes before the FDA on November 30, 2021 for a decision on emergency use. The U.K. has already approved it and Indian clinical trials have had great results cutting hospitalizations and deaths by 50%. The drug was invented by Dr. George Painter of Emory University and licensed by Ridgeback Therapeutics of Miami. The person who partnered with them to bring it to market and make it a reality is Dr. Nick Kartsonis; senior vice president of infectious diseases at Merck. Many scientists agree this pill will be a game changer. Taken for five days in the early phase, it will save millions of lives around the world. Like AIDS that decades later has no effective vaccines, a cocktail of oral antivirals created by Dr. Ho. currently at Columbia University, has saved millions from death and suffering. Taking a pill just as we take Tamiflu for influenza to stop COVID will change everything.

We also need better blood tests to tell us if we are immune to COVID if we have already had it. Just like we must show measles and rubella titers to enroll our children in schools and camps. The 120 million who had COVID in the U.S. one day may be able to show blood test evidence of immunity.

The pandemic is not over and as the holidays approach and people gather and travel in tight indoor spaces, we will see an uptick in cases. The good news is that therapeutic oral antiviral pills and readymade IV and injectable antibodies will dramatically reduce death rates and hospitalizations in the next few months. With faith, hope, love, science and common sense we will get through this together. Think positive and test negative. Enjoy the visit on the planet because it's no dress rehearsal.

Peter Michalos, MD is associate professor of Clinical Ophthalmology, Columbia University Vagelos College of Physicians and Surgeons; Past President of Medical Staff and Past Chief of Surgery Southampton Hospital; Chairman Hamptons Health Society. He has been a resident of Southampton for three decades.

Rabbi Josh Franklin

The Talmud, the great compendium of Jewish legal thought and wisdom, makes the following distinctions between good and bad dinner guests. "What does a good guest say?" asks the sage Ben Zoma: "My hosts have done so much on my behalf, they have served a fine meal with wine, meat and bread. They have done so much for me!"

Bad dinner guests, on the other hand, what do they say? "My hosts didn't do all that much. After all, I only ate one piece of meat, one piece of bread, and I drank only one cup of wine." Such a guest concludes that "my hosts cooked mainly for themselves and their family, but not so much for me." The good dinner guest and the bad dinner guest eat the same meal, have the same experience, and yet come to radically different conclu-

Gratitude is not being thankful when we have abundance, it's being satisfied with whatever it is that we have. Gratitude is less a feeling, and more of a state of mind that we practice. The Hebrew term for gratitude is "hakarat hatov," which literally translates to "recognizing the good in things." The implication is that the good is already there, yet practicing gratitude is merely about uncovering it and being able to see it. Rabbi Bachya ibn Pakuda, an 11th century Jewish philosopher and ethicist, teaches that there isn't a person alive who hasn't been given gifts, if only the gifts of life and hope, but we tend to suffer a kind of blindness that keeps us from seeing and appreciating what we have. If you find yourself in such a place where you can't seem to see anything for which you might be grateful, it is taught that one should say: "We give thanks to you, God, for the mere ability to offer you thanks."

sions. The difference between the two guests, the sages point out, is the virtue of Practicing gratitude isn't easy, but it's surely worth it. "Who is rich?" asks the rabbinic sage Ben Azzai, "the person who has joy in what they have." There is no better time than a crisis or a pandemic to be reminded that there is still blessing and good in so many places in this world, we just have to work on being able to see it.

Father Constantine Lazarakis

Over the course of my life, I have met a handful of people with the uncanny ability to sincerely express gratitude — even under the worst of circumstances. I had a seminary professor who, when confronted with a problem, would exclaim "Glory to God in all things!" He would use this phrase where most people would place an expletive, but rather than invoking a curse, he would offer thanks. Similarly, I had a Sunday school teacher during my high school years, who would constantly instruct us that the challenges about which we so bitterly complained, were actually gifts. That today's trials and tribulations were preparing us for tomorrow's blessings; strengthening us, building our character and cultivating empathy for others.

Both of these figures, who were so important in my own formation, had a certain energy about them. It's hard to describe, but you know it when you see it. They had a certain spring in their step, and a warm and welcoming tone, an undefeatable optimism, and a simplicity of heart. When you were in their presence, it was like feeling sunlight on your face. You always walked away feeling energized and refreshed, encouraged by the love they shared

I love the Thanksgiving holiday — a day set aside for one thing, a day set aside for gratitude. Gratitude is transformative. As my seminary professor and Sunday school teacher taught me, giving thanks is not only transformative for the person who is thankful, but also for those who are around them. Gratitude is contagious. Jesus told his disciples, "You are the light of the world. Let your light shine before others …" (Matt. 5:14-16). This Thanksgiving, let's all give thanks to God, for the good and for the bad, because gratitude has a way of transforming bad in to good. Let us adopt a year-round attitude of gratitude, so that we may be light to the world.

Hamptons Doc Fest Returns for Season 14

BY ANGELA LAGRECA

The 14th season of the Hamptons Doc Fest is back in Sag Harbor — eight days of in-person screenings (December 3–10) first at the new Sag Harbor Cinema (from December 3–5) and then at Bay Street Theater (from December 6–10) with strict protocols, limited seating and an exciting offering of films that either made the cut or were curated by the festival.

The experience of having to pivot last year to an all-virtual documentary film festival was not lost on its founder and executive director, Jacqui Lofaro.

"People in 18 states across the country attended the (Doc) film festival, so that was the upside of it," says Lofaro. adding, "We were thrilled ... we really expanded the audience."

The demand for docs to be streamed was so great, says Lofaro that she and her team decided to add a virtual component this year — so after eight days of live screenings in the theater ends December 10, the festival will continue virtually for eight more days, from December 11–18 and feature selected films that were screened in person, as well as offer other documentary films.

If you love story and appreciate extraordinary filmmaking, the Hamptons Doc Fest brings it all to the East End — one town, with lots of restaurants and on-the-go dining options to refuel between screenings, with plenty of great films to choose — 30 of them this season.

This year the program includes biographical docs about legendary conductor and composer Leonard Bernstein (Bernstein's Wall) and tennis champion and civil rights activist Arthur Ashe (Citizen Ashe). The opening night film is about the prolific (and intensely private) author Joyce Carol Oates (A Body in the Service of Mind).

There will be a tribute to filmmaker Diane Weyermann (an award-winning champion of documentary films who sadly died recently, after agreeing to accept Hamptons Doc Fest's first Producer Impact Award), with Academy Award-winning director Laura Poitus (Citizenfour). On Saturday, December 4, a gala honoring the dynamic filmmaker Dawn Porter (Bree Wayy: Promise Witness Remembrance) will take place at the Sag Harbor Cinema with a special excerpt from Porter's film Cirque du Solei and a conversation with Porter and Julie Anderson. A screening of her award-winning abortion rights film Trapped will be screened December 7 at Bay Street.

The festival offers no shortage of hotbutton subjects — gun control (GSW Gun Shot Wound), racial disenfranchisement (A Reckoning in Boston), migrant workers (Missing in Brody County) and the environment (After Antarctica), as well as a film about the challenges faced by local farmers (Farming Long Island) and a moving doc exploring the age-old question: What makes a meaningful life? (Into the Night: Portraits of Life and Death).

And then there's The Automat, featuring appearances by Mel Brooks, Ruth Bader Ginsburg, Carl Reiner, Colin Powell — all expressing their fondness for the iconic Horn & Hardart restaurant chain.

You can binge watch the docs over the course of the eight days in person, essentially following the festival's catchphrase "all docs, all day" (the In Theater Festival Pass is $250) or pick and choose to see each film ($15 per ticket). The Virtual Festival Value Pass is $75.

It's been quite the ride for Lofaro, an award-winning documentary film-maker herself, who was born and bred in Greenwich Village and who moved out east 30 years ago to live here full time. Along the way she gave up careers in advertising and filmmaking to run this festival, which screens year-round with partnerships that include the Southampton Arts Center and the Parrish Museum as well as Bay Street Theater and the Sag Harbor Cinema.

We caught up with Lofaro via telephone from her home in Bridgehampton to talk about the Hamptons Doc

JACQUI LOFARO

Fest — how it's grown, how films are selected and what are some of this year's exciting highlights.

Fourteen years ... what does it feel like to see your baby grow like this?

It's both heartening and exciting — and frightening — you gotta feed the baby! [laughs]. So it's more fundraising, more details ... we run this film festival like a well-oiled machine. I have a wonderful team and our goal is to really make it a pleasant and wonderful experience for the audience.

How does it differ from other documentary film festivals?

Well, there aren't all that many all-documentary film festivals and so that's why I founded this 14 years ago – because I was a documentary film-maker and back then there wasn't the streaming, there wasn't the platforms for documentary filmmakers, and if they got into the festival circuit, that was the way you'd be seen — so when I started this it was four films and one of them was mine! [laughs]. And it has just grown. ... There is a real audience for documentaries here.

What's the most exciting thing about the festival?

The most exciting thing for me is when I screen privately before we put the program together a documentary that just knocks my socks off.

Who screens the films?

We have a screening committee of about 15 people who screen submissions through filmfreeway.com. The film committee takes four to five months to screen films and then we have a screening meeting and we pick the best from that.

It's interesting — the cream always rises to the top. Everybody is watching separately but there are certain films that all get fives — that's the highest rating.

Then my artistic director Karen Arikian is on the lookout for films that are already playing in the festival circuit so we call those "invited films" — so we have a combination of submitted films and invited films.

What do you look for in a documentary film?

We put a program together knowing our audience, trying to make an interesting mix of good stories — a good story makes a good doc in the hands of a good filmmaker — and it goes like that ... we like to have a doc that's made within the last year and half.

What about subject matter? Any time limit?

It's wide open. If it's a good story — whatever the subject is — and we love it, we'll run it. Features can go up to 2 hours; a short is 20 minutes or less.

How many submissions do you get in a season?

At least a couple of hundred. The films have to be really good to get into our festival because we're screening in one venue (at a time) as opposed to a lot of festivals which screen all over in four or five venues.

Who is your audience out East?

A large local population and second home owners — we really are a community festival — we even have a free community day that Saunders is sponsoring. So on Friday (December 10 at Bay Street) all the films are free so we always get lots of takers for that, which is wonderful.

This year, two venues ...

Yes, the first weekend we're at the Sag Harbor Cinema — it was the right thing to do in terms of using the cinema — we're only using one screen, that's all we could afford, so we're in there with the opening night film on Friday, and Saturday we have three more films and then our big Pennybaker Award program at 9 p.m. in the big theater Cinema 1 on Sunday.

After we leave the cinema we'll be at Bay Street for five days — and that's where we've always been — it's sort of our home, it's really lovely because we have the whole theater and that's really nice. ... I love that theater in the round, it's very intimate.

A STILL FROM "NO ORDINARY LIFE"

Why Sag Harbor?

People love that they can come to one little village, and do it there ... I always talk about having a festival experience. Don't come for one film, come for the day, see two films, have lunch out or three films and have dinner out. I think that's the way you do it.

We have a special arrangement with Baron's Cove so a lot of people stay there – we have a lot of filmmakers coming out this year.

Whare are some highlights?

You'll see films in our festival that you will not see any place else, I'm convinced of that ... some of the smaller films that don't have the budget.

Stig Bjorkman is coming from Sweden, he's the director of the Joyce Carol Oates film, opening night. He is also the subject of another film called Movie Man. Stina Gardell, the producer and director of that film is coming from Sweden, we are really excited about that.

Any favorite films this year?

I love them all. The fact that they got into the festival means I love them. I am partial to one called No Ordinary Life (screening December 9 at Bay Street at 8 p.m.) about pioneering camerawomen who are in the front lines of wars, revolutions and disasters — and they are just extraordinary.

Heather O'Neill is an Emmy and Peabody award-winning journalist and documentarian, she's going to be with us for a Q&A ... and we did a parallel panel discussion — we just taped it last week called "No Ordinary Women" and our marketing director Claudia Pilato moderated it — it's about women who run their own businesses. ... So it will be bonus content on the online version.

What has this festival done for certain films?

We've been able to screen films that because they screened at the Hamp-tons Doc Fest they have a better opportunity to get into other festivals or have gotten distribution deals, so that's nice.

What is the most gratifying thing about what you are doing?

The most gratifying thing for me—and this is really going to sound odd—is when I meet someone a month after the festival or two months after the festival and they say to me, "Oh Jacqui, that film about so and so, it was fabulous, I remember it vividly!" So I know that something that I brought to them made their lives better, richer ... it's sort of an after effect of the festival that's very meaningful to me.

The Hamptons Doc Fest runs from December 3–10 in person, and from December 11–18 virtually. For a complete schedule of films and to order tickets and passes, visit hamptonsdocfest.com.

Strongpoint Theinert Ranch Reaches Major Fundraising Objective

BY OLIVER PETERSON

rongpoint Theinert Ranch, a Unique retreat and bridge program founded and operated by the Shelter Island family of fallen U.S. Army 1st Lt. Joseph Theinert to help veterans and gold star families in the wake of war and tragedy, has successfully funded their new bunkhouse, which they will now call the barracks. Two years in the making, this fundraising goal was the organization's first major capital project at their 1,000-acre property in Magdalena, New Mexico, where the Theinert family have been hosting veterans in need of help, at no cost, since 2016.

The new barracks marks a significant positive shift for Strongpoint Theinert Ranch (STR), which can now host nearly double the number of veterans and accommodate military couples, opening new therapeutic opportunities and programs at the ranch.

STR president and Shelter Island schoolteacher Jimbo Theinert, 1st Lt. Joseph Theinert's younger brother, acknowledges that the fundraising process was long for the barracks, but COVID swept in and mostly put all ranch programming on hold.

"Throughout the COVID pandemic, we definitely kept in touch with all the veterans in our network and our social worker, and continued to follow up and make sure our people were doing OK," he says, also noting that they were able to host a day hike in June for local 106th Rescue Wing veterans at Mashomack Preserve on Shelter Island, which served to "release the pressure valve of things they've been struggling with," including the loss of colleagues before and during the pandemic.

"We've been doing what we can from the program angle, but certainly it's been pared down and the focus has been toward the building of the barracks," Theinert says. "We should have the barracks completed on the property by the end of the year, which is really exciting."

Theinert explains that STR had to do some additional fundraising in the spring to meet rising costs of labor and materials, but they eventually achieved their goal. "I'm very happy to say that this year, although we were unable to host any events, through social fundraisers and people just stepping up, and donations, we did raise over $50,000, which we needed to get us through this final phase of construction," he says.

VETERANS AND FACILITATORS AT STRONGPOINT THEINERT RANCH

"We're fully funded for construction," Theinert continues. "What we're still in need of, as every nonprofit that continues to operate, is just ongoing program expenses. We still want to be able to bring veterans out to the ranch at no cost to them. Now that we'll have the barracks, we want to possibly open it up to military couples, military families," he says. "The new structure is going to be larger than what we have been operating out of, so instead of hosting eight or 10 veterans at a time, it will be more manageable for us to do 14 to 16 participants at a time. There's still definitely a financial need. We're not to the place of an endowment yet — that's certainly a long-term goal for us so that we can continue to do this. ..."

At the start of 2021, the STR board set two major missions for the year: continue to support the veterans in their network to the best of their ability, and to see construction of the barracks to the finish line. They've now succeeded at both, keeping their network stable and, if all goes according to plan, getting the barracks built before 2022.

"We still have two very big months ahead of us," Theinert says, explaining that the barracks' foundation and septic are going in this week. Then the modular build parts will be delivered to the ranch by December 10. Finally, he says, "Getting the house all together and tied up on the property should happen by the end of December, before Christmas."

Theinert says the new building will comprise more than 3,000 square feet, including a large bunk room that will simulate a military environment with shared sleeping space, accommodating 10-12 participants on bunkbeds, along with two ensuite bathrooms. The open floor plan also features a kitchen with attached common gathering area as well as a library stocked with relevant books and movies that could help activate thoughtful conversation and group discussion. Additional bedrooms will also be available for staff, couples or more individual participants as needed.

The total cost of the barracks from start to finish comes in at around $350,000-$375,000, Theinert says, pointing out that they've also been able to feed money to their programming expenses during this time, but once construction is completed, much more funds can be allocated to STR's true mission: bringing veterans to the ranch for healing, camaraderie, personal growth and change.

While the former living space for participants, which is in the Theinert family home, will remain available for overflow, this new facility is owned by the foundation, not the family, and will help keep STR activities a bit separate. "Pretty much myself, my stepfather or my mom was involved with every program in the past," Theinert says. "The ranch has the family name on it, and it's always going to be a family place, but we are also aware that we can do a little bit more good if we let up the reins a bit and allow some of the other people in our organization to step up and be the leaders of these trips, and through this new building, which is owned by the foundation."

Five years into its good work, Strongpoint Theinert Ranch has already helped dozens of veterans struggling with life after service, but this is truly the beginning. Construction of the new barracks marks a major milestone in the organization's growth. STR's future is looking bright, and veterans all across the country, from all age groups and conflicts, will be grateful for it.

The Cooperage Inn:

Continuing Old Traditions While Opening a New Chapter

ON A SUNDAY IN NOVEMBER, THE COOPERAGE INN WAS FULLY BOOKED.

Patrons who visit the popular Cooperage Inn in Calverton are greeted with a warm atmosphere filled with the mouthwatering aroma of delicious comfort food guests have come to love.

Now, after more than two decades in business, adding to that allure is the newly established NoFo Pot Pies window. NoFo Pot Pies, the brainchild of Jonathan Perkins, who owns the Cooperage Inn with his wife Rene, takes the same pot pies that customers have enjoyed for decades, and allows patrons to take them togo. The pies come frozen and need to be baked in the oven for 70 to 90 minutes, depending on the size of the pie. The result is a flaky, warm and decadent restaurant quality pot pie fresh at home.

"We're educating the customers so they know the Cooperage Inn pot pie that they have had for over 20 years now is NoFo Pot Pies. But they're the same pies," Perkins says. "We have the staff wearing NoFo Pot Pie shirts as part of their uniform now to increase brand awareness." The idea of serving these pot pies to-go came to fruition during the pandemic, a tough period for all restaurants who were forced to close for dining, and later operate at reduced capacity. Perkins, who with his team fed the local hospital for free for two months and was later able to seat 100 diners instead of 200, wanted to experiment with the pot pies more. At the time, the Cooperage Inn was only serving chicken pot pies.

Now, the Cooperage Inn, and NoFo Pot Pies, offers flavors ranging from original chicken, turkey, vegetarian, short rib and even sweet pies.

"I decided (during the pandemic) to change things up here and there and now I'm running two businesses in one," Perkins says. "We have never been this busy. We're trying to get a finger on why."

Perhaps, the reason the Cooperage Inn is so busy is because people simply love the food, which utilizes produce from local farms owned by friends of Perkins. The use of local produce is why the Cooperage Inn has diverse offerings depending on the seasons; whether it's a strawberry shortcake in June or apple desserts in the fall.

Another reason the restaurant is so popular could be that many restaurants on the East End close once winter comes. And the Cooperage Inn certainly offers a warm ambience with seasonal decorations arranged by Rene Perkins.

Perkins says that much inspiration comes from the Vermont lodges they frequented as avid skiers.

"Rene is such a genius with decorating," says hostess Karen Otano, who has been at the Cooperage Inn for approximately 13 years. "So it's a lovely place to work and a lovely place to eat."

Before the Cooperage Inn was what it is today, it was a smaller restaurant that originally opened in the 1960s called Bernie's that, after new ownership, had a name change to the Cooperage Inn in 1994.

In the late '90s, Perkins, who has been in the restaurant business for 45 years, had been looking for a spot to open up a new restaurant on his beloved North Shore, when he stumbled upon the Cooperage Inn.

"We walked in," Perkins says. "My wife and I went to the bar and started chatting with them, and then one thing led to another and we were able to purchase the property."

Twenty-three years later, the building, the ambiance and the food the Cooperage Inn serves are much different. A sizable extension was added to the restaurant in 2002, with a kitchen extension put in this year for the NoFo Pot Pies business.

The menu developed by Perkins and main Head Chef Jeff Russell has kept the Cooperage Inn busy all year round.

"We really haven't changed much from what the concept was in the beginning, which was really comfort food and catering to the diners," Perkins says. "You can come in here for a special occasion or you can come in here and have a pot pie, ribs or a sandwich."

The Cooperage Inn is located at 2218 Sound Avenue in Baiting Hollow. It can be reached at 631-727-8994 or cooperageinn.com.

'Ten Squared' Brings Winter Wonders to Southold Historical Museum

BY OLIVER PETERSON

I t's quite rare to find an original painting, drawing or photograph by a local East End artist for less than $1,000, but Southold Historical Museum is in the midst of a special sale where each piece costs far less — $100, no matter which one an interested collector might buy.

Benefiting the museum, the Ten Squared online art exhibition and sale includes more than 50 fabulous works of art by more than 25 artists, each measuring 10 x 10 inches and priced lower than dinner for two at a midrange local restaurant. The current show, running for one month, November 15—December 15, is themed "Winter Wonders" and the available works reflect that theme, some more closely than others.

"The artists are appreciating it and it's not juried, so it's really the artists' interpretation of the theme," explains Southold Historical Museum Executive Director Deanna Witte-Walker, adding,

"WHITE BIRCHES" BY KATHLEEN MCARDLE, ACRYLIC ON CANVAS

"LUMINOUS COLD NIGHT" BY VICTORIA ANDERSON, ACRYLIC ON CANVAS

"We get all different works, we get works from younger people, very skilled, wellknown artists — we get a whole range of different interests and levels."

Mostly from the Hamptons and North Fork, the list of artists in Winter Wonders includes names such as Randee Daddona, Lee Cleary, Carolyn Bunn, Kip Bedell, Lee Harned, Kathleen Young, Ann Fox and Kathleen McArdle, to name a few.

The paintings and photographs on view and for sale at southoldhistorical.org comprise a broad spectrum of subject matter, including everything from snowy landscapes to portraits of birds, to images of the Horton Point and Coffee Pot lighthouses, still lifes, abstract and representational seascapes, trees, shells, and even historical scenes of winter life on the North Fork.

Due to the format's popularity—and surely the $100 price tags that go with it — Ten Squared: Winter Wonders is actually the Southold Historical Museum's second online show in the series this year. Over the summer, the museum saw great success with Ten Squared: Summer Solstice, a show featuring about 80 original works of art. They also produced two Ten Squared shows in 2020, which was the first year the exhibition moved online from the in-person format they'd used since the shows began in 2018.

"We had this first in-person, and then when COVID hit we switched to doing it virtually. ... We were already planning it, so we said, 'How can we do it?' And we quickly were able to figure out how to work it on our website and do the purchasing," Witte-Walker says, explaining that doing the shows online has actually been better in some ways.

"HORTON PT LIGHTHOUSE AFTER SNOWFALL" BY MARILYN LAMY, OIL ON

"A WINTERS PATH" BY CELESTE SIMONELLI. GRAPHITE AND PENCIL

"One of the advantages of having it virtually is that we can keep the exhibit up for the whole month," she continues, pointing out that, in the past, the selection of work on view would diminish as people walked away with the pictures they bought. Now, even if someone insists upon getting ahold of their art before the show's conclusion, the image is marked "sold," but remains on the website for all to admire. "And that supports the local artists whether they sell a painting or not."

The museum announced the show and its theme back in September when Witte-Walker began asking artists to submit up to three pieces each. As per the format, works could be in any medium, but they had to measure exactly 10 x 10 inches and make some effort to reflect the Winter Wonders theme.

At the time, Witte-Walker wrote, "Winter' is a huge concept, so you'll want to narrow down your creative ideas into a more cohesive theme. It might be winter on the North Fork, it might be a certain culture's myths and traditions about winter, or it might be interpretations of winter seen through the eyes of different people. What are the natural processes governing winter? What animals and plants thrive during winter? Seasons of change are coming. Share your interpretation, literal or symbolic, of Winter Wonders."

But in the end, the executive director says they would never turn away work unless it was somehow offensive or wildly inappropriate. Each participating artist agrees to split the $100 evenly, giving the museum $50 per piece to help support their programs year-round.

"When an artist like Randee Daddona or Lee Harned or Ty (Stroudsburg, who is not in this sale) submit, they're not doing it because they're looking to make money on it. They're not doing it to get their name out there. They're doing it to support the museum and they want the work to be hung in someone's home," Witte-Walker observes.

For novices or lesser-known artists, she says the shows can be a good way to get their work seen and make a few bucks. The buyers, meanwhile, can pick up a quality piece of art for a bargain, and no matter who's selling, the museum gets a little help keeping the lights on.

In other words, with these Ten Squared shows, everyone wins.

Visit southoldhistorical.org to join the fun — but don't wait, pieces are selling fast.

HOLIDAY GUIDE

Dan's North Fork Holiday Gift Guide 2021

BY DAVID TAYLOR

So you're doing a little holiday shopping on the North Fork and need some gift ideas? You've come to the right place. Check out these 10 presents your loved ones are sure to cherish!

Art by Isabelle Haran-Leonardi

Consistently voted Dan's Best of the Best artist on the North Fork, Isabelle Haran-Leonardi is well-equipped for the holidays. Her Greenport gallery and studio, Nova Constellatio Gallery, holds an impressive selection of large and small paintings, as well as prints, of North Fork locales, mermaids, boats, seascapes and local fauna. There's something for every space and budget. 419 Main Street, Greenport. 516-443-0242, novaconstellatiogallery.com

Advent Calendar and More Chocolate Goodies

Start the countdown to Christmas off right with North Fork Chocolate Company's advent calendar full of surprising handcrafted chocolates. And while you're shopping, be sure to grab some chocolate trees, reindeer, Santas, snowmen and toy soldiers for the stockings — each available in dark, milk or white chocolate. 740 Main Road, Aquebogue. 631-779-2963, shop.northforkchocolate.com

THE DENIM GARLAND NECKLACE AT METAL MONK

Mystery Gem Box

What's better than surprising a loved one with a mystery gift? Making it a surprise to yourself, as well! Yes, Common Ground in Greenport offers mystery boxes filled with three small gems that range from spheres to palm stones to raw pieces. Each box also contains a handwritten note explaining the name and spiritual descriptor of the three mystery gems. Why not go all-out and replace boring old white elephant with a mystery gem swapping party this year? 29 Front Street, Greenport. commongroundjewelry.com

Ryder Blazer

One of the hottest Central Park West styles of the season is back in stock at Mint in black and camel. Each features one-button closure front and a detachable hoodie insert. The black variant includes faux leather detailing on the sleeves and pockets, and a gray hoodie insert, while the camel is a bit more basic and workplace appropriate, and comes with a black hoodie insert. The black is $248, and the camel is $228. 260 Love Lane, Mattituck. 631-298-8009, shopmint.com

Frida Denim Jewelry Collection

Denim jeans look good with pretty much everything. Denim jacket? Same thing. So the same must also be > true for the Frida Kahlo denim jewelry collection at Metal Monk in Greenport. Perhaps not real denim, these uniquely crafted necklaces are painted and layered in such a way that they give off the look of classic and fell denim. From the simple mesh pendant necklace to the chunky garland necklace, each is a statement piece worth showing off. The necklaces range in price from $75-$99.15 Front Street #4, Green-631-477-2722, metalmonkjewels.com

A MINI PAINTING BY ISABELLE HARAN-LEONARDI

Wine Vacuum Sealer

Know anyone who fancies themselves a wine expert and can't bear to revisit a bottle a day after it's been opened? Pindar Vineyards has something that may solve that problem. Their colorful vacuum sealers remove the air from a partially empty wine bottle with a few quick pumps before becoming a stopper with an airtight seal. The rubber grip makes for comfortable handling, and the $10 price tag is a steal. 37645 Main Road, Peconic. 631-734-6200, pindar.net

Ghost of Christmas Present Gift Box

We all have that one friend who loves things hot. No, whatever you're thinking, think hotter — more heat, more spice! This year, satiate that friend's masochistic tastebuds with Greenport Fire's Ghost of Christmas Present. This gift box comes packed with five bottles of pure heat, so be careful handling Ghost Scream "OG," El Verde, Ghost Truffle, Vindaloo Curry and Green Reaper. $55 per box. 25 Main Street, Greenport, 631-333-2233, feelthefireny.com

Suffolk Theater Gift Card

Everyone on the North Fork knows that Suffolk Theater in Riverhead is the biggest live show venue in the area, but what many don't know is that they can give the gift of a show this holiday season. You don't even need to know whether your friend would rather see Frankie Avalon in February or Rob Schneider in August, just put $100 on a gift card, and they'll be able to see whatever show they want. 118 East Main Street, Riverhead. 631-727-4343, suffolktheater.com

Camo Bird Island Apparel

Finding Long Island apparel that's neither beachy nor touristy can be a bit of a struggle, well, if you're not shopping at Revel North Fork, that is. They offer great everyday clothes in numerous styles for men, women and children, but the chic Camo Bird Island hoodies and crewneck sweatshirts are particularly cool thanks to the great camouflage patterns and artsy silhouette graphics of Long Island with a North Fork flock of birds flying into the distance. Prices range $48-$55. 10 Front Street, Greenport. 631-616-9128, revelnorthfork.com

North Fork Roasting Bagged Coffee

If you know any coffee drinkers ready to split from Café Bustelo or Starbucks brand beans, then introduce them to Commitment Issues, one of the many bagged coffee blends North Fork Roasting Co. has prepared for locals and daytrippers to grab and enjoy. In addition to the half-caffeine CI, there's also Columbian, Nicaraguan, organic Sidamo, Sumatra, Beetlejuice, Sanctuary and Namast'ay Home Blend. Bags are available as whole beans, for drip, French press, percolator or cold brew. The 12 oz. bags are $14-$18. 55795 Main Road, Southold. 631-876-5450, northforkroastingco.com

HOLIDAY GUIDE

Holiday Gift Guide

ALYSSA SACCENTE, GATTA ZAFFIRA

With the holiday season in full swing you are probably scouring the stores for what to get everyone on your shopping list. If you are shopping for teens or adults, it can be a bit tricky because they may have everything they could want or need, or maybe they don't have any idea what they want and leave it up to you to decide. Either way, you don't want to be the one who gets "that face" when they open their gift to something generic and impersonal. Alyssa Saccente is here to help make holiday shopping a little bit easier. Saccente was born and raised on Long Island before she attended SUNY New Paltz and majored in drawing and painting. It was here that she found her love for metal smithing. Now she is an in-house artist at the Pelletreau Silver Shop, where she gets to live her dream of creating unique and interesting pieces. Saccente runs her own jewelry making business out of the shop called Gatta Zaffira, where she designs and creates everything from earrings to necklaces to rings. So if you are in the market for a truly unique gift, head over to Gatta Zaffira, located in the Pelletreau Silver Shop. instagram.com/gatta.zaffira

NARDY PEST CONTROL

Nothing will ruin the holidays like some unwanted house guests. If some uninvited guests decide to make your home theirs for the holidays then call Nardy Pest Control to have them out of your hair before Santa arrives. Nardy Pest Control has been helping customers on the North Fork get and keep their homes pest-free since 1997. This company services both indoor and outdoor areas; the team behind this company is sure that they have the tools and knowledge to get your pest control problem under control in no time. Removing the pests is just one part of the solution, which is why this company also offers attic inspections, minor repairs for entry holes and attic cleanups. This way, once the pests are out, they will stay out for good, not visit you next year once the temperature drops again. Nardy Pest Control has also started offering disinfecting services for homes, offices, nursing homes and more. The company uses Steri-Fab, which is made up of 60% alcohol and can be used on hard or soft surfaces such as mattresses and carpets. This way everyone can stay safe and healthy this holiday season without the added stress of disinfecting on your own. 631-726-4777, nardypest.com

GO WEST BOOTS

Looking for a unique gift to get someone that will stand out from the crowd and not collect dust on their closet floor? Then look no further than Long Island's go-to for all of their country needs, Go West Boots. This one-stop shop has been serving Long Island and the surrounding areas for almost 25 years; since opening their doors the store and its staff have quickly become known around town as having the best products and awesome customer service. The staff here are not only friendly but also helpful in determining the right size boot for you and helping to pick out gifts that will wow everyone this year. The store does not just stop at boots - the shop also carries hats, belts, jeans, shirts, buckles, dresses and even home decor. Of course, Go West carries sizes for the whole family so no one will be left out during this shopping trip. Visit Go West and have the whole family looking like they just stepped out of an old country western movie! Between the knowledgeable staff and large selection, it is no wonder this store has become one of the community's favorites. 631-244-9378, gowestny.com

SEA EAGLE BOATS

Are you looking for a gift that will really wow this year but also not go to waste under someone's bed? Or maybe you are looking for a gift for yourself to get you out of your comfort zone and trying something new? Either way, Sea Eagle Boats in Port Jefferson has you covered. This business is located near some of Long Island's greatest bodies of secluded water which is what makes this company more unique than others of its kind. Sea Eagle Boats, a family-ownedand-operated business, first opened its doors in 1968 and has been serving the Long Island community for all their boating needs ever since. This company first got its start by selling two-person inflatable kayaks and has since grown to carry a number of items including inflatable kayaks, canoes, fishing boats, boards and other fishing gear. The key to this company's success lies in its quality products, personable staff and the owners' true love for being on the water. All of their products are tested by the owners and employees so you don't have to worry about being stranded out on the water because of cheap equipment. Everything sold here is of the highest standard and quality. 1-800-748-8066, seaeagle.com

SAG HARBOR CHAMBER

The Sag Harbor Chamber of Commerce is composed of business professionals who operate in Sag Harbor and the surrounding areas. This group volunteers their time and expertise to keep Sag Harbor as one of Long Island's crown jewels while preserving its history and adapting to the changing world. If you are looking to support small businesses this year while scoring gifts that will put a smile on even the most stubborn kid's face then look no further than the shops in Sag Harbor. The Sag Harbor Chamber of Commerce includes restaurants and shops so you can get all of your holiday shopping done in time to grab a bite at some of the most appealing restaurants on Long Island. Whether you are looking for a quick bite or a nice sit-down dinner, you will not be disappointed with what these restaurants have to offer. For those shoppers looking to wow their family and friends with a gift that carries a lot of history then look no further than the historic and charming shops that line Main Street. These shops carry everything from pottery, jewelry and clothes to the latest technology, books and fresh flowers. sagharborchamber.com

OBITUARY

Roger Mulvihill, Lawyer and Sag Harbor Resident, Has Died at 85

BY DAN RATTINER

Roger Mulvihill, who died on November 6 at the age of 85, was a lawyer, sportsman and storyteller, as well as a beloved friend, husband, father and grandfather. He spent most of his adult life at his homes in Sag Harbor, Manhattan and Bronxville, New York.

As a sportsman, he played just about every game put in front of him from an early age, and had stories to tell about all of them, from his growing up in Pittsburgh playing baseball in high school, to Georgetown University, to the minor leagues for the Baltimore Orioles, at tryouts for the New York Yankees and more recently, tennis at the Meadow Club and the Bronxville Field Club. He was captain of the baseball team at the legal firm where he spent most of his career, at Dechert LLP where he was a partner and founder of that firm's private equity practice. In his later years, he encouraged his children and grandchildren to play, would watch them, and afterwards, to their delight, inform anybody who would listen about how their games proceeded to and fro as either a triumph or fully understandable loss.

As a young man, he attended Georgetown, got his law degree at Yale, spent time in the Army serving in the Judge Advocate General's Corps and then spent the rest of his years at Dechert.

The love of his life, however, was his family and particularly his wife Mary, with whom he raised a family and later, traveled the world.

He was a man who loved life and saw the best in people. He had a quick wit, loved to read, enjoyed discussing the issues of the day and with his boyish charm was an inspiration to everyone who knew him.

He leaves behind his wife, Mary; his

his daughter-in-law Kathleen: his sonsin-law Greg and Henry; six grandchildren who loved and adored him: Jack, children Christopher, Kerry and Suzy; Patrick, Ryan, Darby, Teddy and Lucy; his sister Denise of Charleston, SC and many, many nieces and nephews.

HIGH PROFILE

Power Broker:

Tina Glandian

BY TODD SHAPIRO

Whether it is inside a courtroom in New York City or Los Angeles, or poolside in the Hamptons, Tina Glandian is a recognizable name and face among the cultural elite. Glandian is something of a Renaissance woman, whose expertise spans everything from law and real estate, to entrepreneurship and international advocacy.

Glandian is an attorney to the stars whose multijurisdictional practice spans from civil litigation to high profile criminal defense. Beginning in the legal field in 2005 with the respected Geragos & Geragos law firm, she spent several years practicing in Los Angeles, before moving to New York. She was instrumental in the firm's move to the city, where she helped open the Fifth Avenue office that she currently runs.

Glandian's legal counsel has proven invaluable to countless celebrities, professional athletes and entertainers. Her client list reads like boldfaced names splattered on Page Six, representing A-listers such as Ke$ha, Mike Tyson and Chris Brown. Glandian was also the lead attorney in the Michael Jackson v. Xtrajet case, after Jackson's chartered jet was illegally wiretapped.

Her legal acumen is both well respected and coveted by her clients, and she tries cases in both the courtroom and the court of public opinion. Defending and preserving her client's reputation is her specialty, which is why she has been seen on Good Morning America, NBC's TODAY Show, Inside Edition, CNN and numerous other programs. The print media, too, has covered her cases at-length, in national and regional publications such as The New York Times and the New York Post.

"I am inspired by a desire to help people, particularly the underdogs," Glandian says. "The feeling that someone is relying on me to tell their story or to right a wrong is a great motivator. I strive to give my clients a voice and to be their most zealous advocate."

Glandian also says that risk taking and facing challenges continues to motivate her, and is a major factor in her success.

"I think that my willingness to get out of my comfort zone and continually try to challenge myself has been a large force in my career," Glandian adds. "This includes practicing in different jurisdictions and widening my range of practice areas."

While Glandian may be most well known for her expertise in law, her passions span far and wide. She is in charge of Geragos Hospitality, which brings her to the East End for business and for leisure. In 2015, the Geragos group purchased the Capri Southampton for $4.7 million, which was known at the time for being a hotspot for pop- up eateries.

While summering in the Hamptons, she can be found at many of the same places that we all enjoy, such as Coopers Beach, Tate's Bake Shop, Sant Ambroeus and Tutto il Giorno.

"I may be slightly biased, but when staying at Capri, I love lounging at The Bathing Club and dining at NAIA," she says of her own establishments.

Glandian has doubled down on hospitality and has turned the Capri into one of the hottest destinations for visitors enjoying the summer months on the East End. In recent years, with it being nearly impossible to find a hotel room on the East End, the chic 30-room hotel has become a home away from home for many of the most notable Hamptons-goers.

Just last summer, the Capri welcomed Boyz II Men singers Shawn Stockman and Wanya Morris, Christie Brinkley, rappers Young Thug and Travis Scott, and even political power players such as Gov. Kathy Hochul and NY Attorney General Letitia James, a gubernatorial hopeful.

In times when Glandian is not conducting business or trying cases, she is an outspoken advocate and a champion for women's rights both nationally and internationally. In an ambassadorial capacity, she serves as a United Nations representative for the Armenian International Women's Association, part of the Commission on the Status of Women, where she has been a forceful voice for equality and human rights.

For the past six years, Glandian has called the Capri Southampton home, and appreciated the Hamptons for the quality of life, the slowdown that comes with it, and the quaint communities that make up this lovely part of Long Island.

"I really enjoy the small-town feel of community and camaraderie in the Hamptons," she says. "It is a nice contrast to life in the big city. A weekend in the Hamptons can be a relaxed, secluded getaway where you can enjoy nature and the beauty of the sprawling beaches and lush greenery.

"But a weekend can also be an extravagant rosé-inspired social affair with posh dining, polo matches and vibrant nightlife," she continues. "I happen to enjoy both."
